Dr. Samuel McLemore, 74 year old physician, who has been practicing in Cherokee County since 1895, and one of the picturesque figures often referred to as the old country doctor, died at his home at Grape Creek Sunday and was buried in the Salem churchyard on the same day.

He was about three-fourth Cherokee Indian, his father being a full-blood while his mother was a half blood. He was not a member of any church, but sometime before he died he told several close friends that all was well between him and his Maker. He had been suffering from yellow jaundis for several months, and was confined to his bed three weeks before the end came.

He is survived by his wife and five children, Morrell, Ross, Bonnie, Glenn and Clinton McLemore, of Grape Creek.

SMITH SENDS MESSAGE OF ACCEPTANCE

Deplores Corruption and Lawlessness Throughout The Country

PLEDGE TO THE PEOPLE

Presidential Nominee Promises To Uphold Law If Elected

ALBANY, N. Y., June 29.—(AP).—Governor Alfred E. Smith sent an acceptance telegram to the Democratic national convention Friday in which he reiterated his belief that there should be fundamental changes in the present provision for national prohibition.

He said in the telegram, which was addressed to Senator Robinson, the common honesty compels admission that corruption of law enforcement officials, bootlegging, and lawlessness are prevalent throughout the country.

"While I fully appreciate," he said after again stating his stand on prohibition, "that these changes can only be made by the people themselves through their elected legislative representatives, I feel it to be the duty of the chosen leader of the people to point the way, which in his opinion leads to a sane, sensible solution of a condition which I am convinced is entirely unsatisfactory to the great mass of our people."

MURPHY GETS NEW TEACHER TRAINING UNIT

State Pays Salary of Teacher and County Furnishes Equipment For Class to be Added to Local School

The Cherokee County Board of Education in cooperation with the Murphy high school will conduct a teachers training school for prospective teachers of this and other counties in the Murphy High School building next year and annually from now on. Sometime ago the County Board of Education approved the plan and made provisions in its budget for such a school. Friday afternoon the Murphy School Board gave its approval formally to the proposition to use one of the rooms in the high school building for class purposes and to use the grammar school as a demonstration school. County Superintendent A. L. Martin has recently received word from Mrs. T. E. Johnson, State Supervisor of Teacher Training in High Schools, that a teacher will be employed and plans made to open the school early in September when the Murphy public schools open. Thus the school is assured.

Some ten or eleven high school graduates have already signed application blanks for entrance upon the school and there are several others who intend to sign up a little later, it is thought. Only ten pupils are required to open the school. The county board of education will furnish the equipment for the school while the state department of education will pay the teacher's salary. There will be no cost to the local school except the supplying of heat and the room. Thus the school is county wide and prospective teachers from other counties may enter also so long as there is room in the school.

Graduates of standard high schools and teachers who now hold the elementary B. certificate and want to raise them, may enter the school. There is no cost to the pupil for attending the school except for books. Most of the books, however, and the material employed in making charts, etc., will be furnished free. Those who successfully complete the course will be awarded an elementary A state teachers certificate valid for five years. Under the state salary schedule these certificates will draw from $75 to $95 per month, depending upon the experience of the holders thereof.

Also, those who attend this training school will be given credit for two-thirds of a years work in the normal schools of the state, such as the Normal School at Cullowhee, Boone, East Carolina Teachers College, etc. The school will be well equipped, the supplies will be adequate, the library and magazine shelves well filled and the teacher one of the best that can be had, while the grammar school of the Murphy Schools will be a training school for the classes. Thus this school will be in a position to do a fine piece of work in equipping the young people of the county for teaching positions. Only twenty pupils can be accepted for the school in any one year and those who are contemplating taking the course are being asked to see the County Superintendent, A. L. Martin at an early date and sign the application blank. This is the more necessary so that the proper amount of equipment may be bought for each student who will be in the school.

Those who know about the school are elated over the prospects of receiving this training while they are at home and at no expense to themselves or parents. There are about twenty such county-wide schools in

CLINIC AT MURPHY JULY 31—AUG. 1-3

The State Board of Health will hold a Tonsil and Adenoid Clinic at the school building in Murphy July 31, and August 1, 2, and 3, for children between the ages of 6 and 12 inclusive.

Full emergency hospital equipment, eight registered nurses, and a competent physician to give ether and a specialist to operate, should any case require operations. The cost of the operation is $12.50, which is all the cost there is attached, which cost is totally free for needy cases.

The clinic service will be free, the only cost being an operation if those in charge of the clinic find an operation is necessary. Those who are interested in an examination should make engagement with the State Nurse, County Superintendent of Schools, or Mrs. Warren, County Welfare Superintendent. All children who are ready for school in September will be eligible for examination.

The State now and this form of teacher training seems to be gaining ground.

OFFICERS NIP JAIL BREAK CONSPIRACY

Six Hack Saws Found In Shoes Of One John Barna Who Calls With Pal At Local Jail

Two men, who gave their names as Paul Stone and John Barna, were taken completely by surprise Monday night when they visited Walter Stone and wife the Cherokee County Jail, and officers nipped in the bud what was perhaps one of the cleverest jail breaking conspiracies in the history of the local jail, when they searched them and found six hacksaws concealed in the shoes of Barna.

According to officers, the two men made inquiry at the jail for Mr. and Mrs. Walt Smith, stating that they were friends and had worked with Smith up state for the highway department. The officers admitted them and they identified Walt and Mrs. Stone as the parties they were looking for. They then stated that they had some fruits and eatables out at their car and asked permission to bring it in, to which the officers agreed.

However, the officers smelled a rat, and when they returned some thirty minutes later and were admitted to the cells, to their surprise, they found Sheriff Birchfield, and Chief Cooper waiting to see them. Jailor Crawford and Chief Cooper searched them while Sheriff Birchfield stood guard.

Nothing was found on their person or about their clothes. The officers ordered them to pull off their shoes, but nothing apparently was in or about them. When the bottom of one of the shoes of Barna was cut open, three hacksaws were revealed neatly and cleverly hidden between the soles. The other shoe revealed three more, and it is said that Barna confessed that he alone knew they were there and for what purpose, and sought to exonerate Paul Stone.

Walter Stone and wife were apprehended sometime ago and are in the local jail in default of bonds awaiting trial at the coming term of superior court charged with breaking into and robbing N. W. Abernathy's store at Marble.

Paul Stone claims to be a brother of Walter, and he and Barna are in jail charged with conspiracy to make a jail delivery. They were arraigned before Mayor Harry F. Cooper Wednesday morning. J. D. Mallonee appearing as their attorney. In the absence of Moody & Moody, attorneys for Walt Stone and wife, and due to their being charged with complicity in the jail break conspiracy, the hearing was postponed until Thursday afternoon and by agreement of F. O. Christopher, appearing as prosecutor for the city and attorney Mallonee of the defense, with a probability that the hearing would be further postponed until Saturday.

A search of the rooms at the Wells House of Stone and Barna revealed two suit cases filled with personal belongings, such as work and dress shirts, socks, underwear, clothes, etc., practically all of which was new. Two overcoats were also found one of which had a pistol in the pocket. A small, new gasoline stove was also found among their belongings, together with several blankets. The car was a Ford sedan carrying a Pennsylvania tag, and officers are tracing down its ownership from the factory.

A passport for Barna was found in one of the suit cases from the United States to Germany, Austria, and Hungary and return, which gave his age as 22. Paul Stone looks to be about the same age.

It is said that Walter Stone told

CUP HOLDER GOES NINE HOLES IN 53

Florida Golfer Likes Conaheeta Golf Course and Makes Good Score Despite Handicaps

Paul Carlisle, of West Palm Beach, Fla., holder of a cup for excellent playing on the golf course at Charleston, S. C., and one from a golf club at Jacksonville, Fla., played the local golf course of the Conaheeta Country Club last Saturday afternoon for a score of 53 for the nine holes, while C. K. Hoover, champion of the local course, played with him for a score of 57.

Carlisle played under several handicaps, and Hoover was not playing on his standard. This was Carlisle's first round on the course, and just before starting the game he received a telegram from West Palm Beach that his father was not expected to live. It has also been three or four months since he had played any golf. Just what was the handicap Hoover was laboring under is unknown, but he had previously scored 49 and this week made 47.

The first three holes were played before the writer got on the scene and the scores speak for themselves. On the first hole Hoover made three strokes and Carlisle 5. It was on the first green that Carlisle came to the conclusion that he was up against a real golfer. Hoover made the next hole in 6, and Carlisle held his strokes to 5, leaving Hoover with low score by one stroke. Hoover made the third green in 7 strokes, taking the lead by 4 strokes, when Carlisle punished himself with ten.

The score on fourth tee stood 16 to 20 in Hoover's favor, and this is where the Scout's special golf writer found the two champions struggling. From the fourth tee Hoover's shot fell short, but he succeeded in lifting it up the hill and into the hole in five. Carlisle did some real driving from the fourth tee when he put the ball on the green in one. This was enough to frighten Hoover, but he regained his posture when Carlisle took three more strokes to get into the hole. The score now stood 21 to 24, still in Hoover's favor.

From the fifth tee, Carlisle put one clear over the hill—like most golfers will do on the first round—but handled the ball like a veteran with the next stroke and landed on the green, taking two more strokes to make the hole. Hoover's shot from the fifth tee carried him within several feet of the green, and the second stroke placed him within three feet of the hole, but it cost him two more strokes to close the bargain. Both tied this hole, 4 and 4, while the score was still in Hoover's favor, 25 to 28.

From the sixth tee, Carlisle sent his first drive out of bounds into the wild country to the southwest. He retrieved the ball, his second drive placed him in the low country to the right of the fairway, and be-
