LIONS MEET AT MRS. WHITE'S IN COUNTRY

The Murphy Lions were guests of Mis. E. G. White at her home in the Belleview section Tuesday night, where they enjoyed a sumptuous repart, inspected various family heirleoms and had a good time in general. The meeting was held with Mrs. White on her invitation extended sevel weeks ago, and was in the form White on her invitation extended several weeks ago, and was in the form of ladies night. The hostess served dinher a la cafeteria, couples being arranged by drawing cards with corresponding number. Mrz. White was assisted in serving by her nephews, the Posey boys.

The guests were shown many heir looms and relics of the Cobb family, including hand made and carved walnut bedsteads, chest of drawers or ward obt, a sausage grinder, scarfs, quiits and coverlids.

The sausage mill was a real relic

The sausage mill was a real relic of the past. It was wooden, handmade, the only metal parts being the kniver which cut the meat and the hilles which held the top on when opened. It was said to be about 130 pears old, and is a fine specimen of pillinger workmansh p.

The large sitting room was lined with book cases, and some of the books were more than a hundred year old. One of the prized possessions of Mrs. White is a latin grammar, by Benjamin A. Gould, published in Boston in 1835 by Hillard, Grave & Co.

Gray & Co.

Among the pictures tastefully arranged about the rooms is one of her famous baseball nephew, Tyrus Raymond Cobb, and one of Uncle Remus. The one of Uncle Remus was made when he was about 60 years old and is autographed: "With best wishes of Joel Chandler Harris."

Following dinner, the Lions went into a huddle for a short business session in the spacious sitting room, while the tadies and Mr. White retired to the parlor where they enjoyed several piano numbers by Mr. White, who is an excellent musician, although blind.

At the business session, the Lions discussed the prospects of the TVAC cannery, and voted to give one of the declamation medals in the high school this year as usual. President Fair announced that officers would elected at the second meeting in May.

The meeting was an enjoyable affair, and the Lions voted an expression of thanks to Mrs. White and her asistants for the splendid entertainment. Those attending were: Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Fain, Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Elkins, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Hyde, Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Gray, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Coleman, Dr. R. W Petrie, H. Bueck, Stewart H. Long and C. W. MAY IST DEFINITE DATE SET FOR "STOP THIEF"

The curiain will lise promptly at 7:30 the evening of May 1st, Tuesday at the high school auditorium, when the Senior class of the local high school presents "STOP THIEF!" as its valedictory dramatic offering. Tickets are on sale at the popular prices of 25c and 15c for the evening performance. A bargain matinee for Graded School children will be held Monday afternoon.

Graded School children will be held Monday afternoon.

Unusual effort has been expended this year to get a royalty play and the drama is a swiftly moving comedy with thrilling robbery scenes, much witty dialogue and a strong love interest. Modern costumes are used throughout the play the most striking being the dainty bridal outfit worn by Ruth Ledford. Ronald Graham will probably feature the most eccentric make up of the cast, in his role of ominous detective. Oscar Hunt tackles a formidable task in his role of hard boiled Wall Street broker and manages it with the deftness he displayed in his earlier characterizations of "Mr. Ingolsby" and "Old Man Smith" in two former plays this year. Kermit Davenport has the distinction of carrying the part with the most lines to learn, while Elbert Anderson demonstrates his ability to create a character without once opening his mouth.
