ON PASSING A TOWN BY MOONLIGHT

Little moon-lit village,
On the mountain side,
Would I be disillusioned
If I should abide?

Is your church spire silver?
Are all your houses white?
Are your streets as lovely
By daylight as at night?

Are there no dirty alleys?
No houses without paint?
No hungry little children,
Looking pale and faint?

I do not want an answer,
Little town, from you,
I'll not return by daylight
To mar my moonlight view.
—Cosa Elizabeth Reynolds.
