

LEGAL NOTICE

NOTICE OF SALE

Under and by virtue of a judgment of the Superior Court entered at March-April Term, 1942, of the Superior Court of Cherokee County, in the case of the State of North Carolina against John Sims, in which case the Universal Credit Company intervened as claimant and established its claim as a lien creditor of the said John Sims, in which judgment it is ordered that the claim of the said Universal Credit Company shall be paid and satisfied from the sale of a certain automobile herein-after described, and that the Sheriff of Cherokee County is authorized and directed to offer said automobile for sale at public auction to the highest bidder for cash, after advertising the same for Twenty Days at the courthouse in Cherokee County and published in The Cherokee Scout.

Therefore, in pursuance of authority in said judgment to me directed, the undersigned will, on the 6th day of May, 1942, at 10 o'clock A. M., at the place of business of W. A. Reece Motor Company, in Andrews, North Carolina, offer for sale the following described automobile:

A certain Ford Delux Fordor, 1941 model, Motor No. 18-6327238, it being the same automobile purchased of W. A. Reece Motor Company by the said John Sims on or about the 13th of February, 1941.

This the 15th day of April, 1942.
J. E. TOWNSON,
Sheriff of Cherokee County.

NOTICE TO VOTERS

I hereby announce myself as a candidate for the office of Register of Deeds of Cherokee County subject to the action of the Democratic Primary or Convention as the case may be. I will appreciate your continued support and if nominated and elected I assure you that I will continue to serve as courteously and efficiently as I have tried to do in the past. I respectfully solicit your votes.

This March 14, 1942.

B. L. PADGETT.

WASHINGTON SNAPSHOTS

During the next few months civilians all over the country are going to feel the impact of war more strongly than ever before. Shortages like those that have already occurred in many lines of consumer goods are going to increase and increase rapidly, according to officials here, as more and more industries change over to the grim and sober business of full-time war production.

The experts say that an acute metal shortage is rapidly developing on the production front. It's bound to cut still further the amount of metals now available for the manufacture of many of the articles that are regarded as necessities in peace-time Army and Navy estimates for the current war program indicate that military demand alone exceeds the supply of many metals.

This month five industries—laundry equipment, radios and phonographs, electric refrigeration, vending machines and vacuum cleaners—are going to stop making civilian goods. No lawnmowers except those used to harvest crops may be turned out after June 30. Iron and steel used in making beds, bedsprings and mattresses have already been curtailed from 15 to 60 per cent. Iron, steel, and zinc used in manufacturing articles will be cut up to 50 per cent, beginning June 30.

These reductions are only a few of the many that are coming, but they indicate what's going to happen in the future as industry continues to concentrate on war production.

WPB and OPA officials are frankly worried over the possibility of "panic buying" as a result of these scarcities. They realize that something must be done to prevent runs on stores by anxious consumers, but so far no one has come up with a workable solution to the problem.

Right now many staunch Administration supporters are urging the President to issue an executive order instructing the government agencies involved to develop and execute a coordinated policy that would put an overall blanket on wages, profits, and prices to replace the present "piecemeal" method of dealing with these problems.

Officials who are sponsoring the plan contend that it would eliminate the continued demand for wage increases on the part of labor. When such increases were given, they would be paid in Government bonds.

As men and women throughout the country become more and more aware of the fact that "this is war," Congress can look forward to a close check on its action by the folks back home. The recent flood of mail about the 40-hour week is only the beginning, according to many observers here who remember other national crises that aroused a letter-writing mood in John Does all over the nation.

Although the truce in the bitter controversy over labor legislation is scheduled to last until April 20, opposing camps are still maneuvering behind the scenes. What the outcome will be no one can predict at the moment, for the situation changes from day to day. This much is certain, however, letters from the folks back home demand that something be done, and done quickly, to guarantee maximum cooperation in the victory production drive.

As Donald Nelson said the other day, "we have but little time." General opinion here is that leading industrialists already realize this and are acting accordingly.

On The Home Front

Strange indeed is the obsession of some Americans that we're going to win this war simply because of our superiority in natural resources and industrial capacity. Victory will come only through using them intelligently.

It is the determine of the War Production Board to us ethese things intelligently that lies behind its action in slicing away at civilian manufacture. For instance, the Board has prohibited further use of iron and steel in a long list of products and has also halted all construction not essential to the war purpose.

We are now producing weapons at the rate of some 30 billion dollars a year. It's not enough, of course, but it's three times what we were doing last year—and our pace is accelerating. Let Hitler and Hirohito and Mussolini think that over!

THREE PROBLEMS

The most important problem we face on the Home Front today is that of production, but there are three other problems to be solved if we are to get production to the fullest. These problems are (1) shortages of materials vital to the war effort; (2) inflation, which means that prices are getting higher and higher and that unless something is done we won't get our full value in planes and weapons and ships for our money; and (3) transportation.

Rail transportation, both for passengers and freight, is going to become more difficult every day. The problems of motor transportation increase also. The Office of Price Administration warns that there's no guarantee that recapping material will be available even for the tires of defense workers... and that "national interest and not the convenience of the war worker" is the governing factor in allocating such material.

FIGHTS INFLATION

The OPA is combating inflation and the rising cost of living, and this fight must be won if we are to defeat the Axis. Within the past few days, the OPA has added many articles—including 44 electrical appliances—to a long list of things over which it has set maximum prices. The OPA has just opened seven branch offices, and more are to be opened as the need becomes apparent.

In Los Angeles a tire dealer has been indicted for violating rationing regulations, this being the first case of its kind on the Pacific Coast. . . And the City of Toledo, Ohio, lost in a court ruling that municipalities must conform to OPA price maximums. The city was selling street railway track scrap.

WPB has ordered cigarette manufacturers to stop wrapping in lead foil after May 1, regardless of how much they have on hand. Lead, let it not be forgotten, is the raw material for bullets and tetraethyl lead goes into the making of highest gasoline used in a 400-mile an hour fighting plane.

CLOTHING AFFECTED

The need for conservation of materials has reached into the field of women's styles, but men with the same result as in the case of men's clothing. About the only parallel between the rulings affecting men and those affecting women is that there will be no cuffs on women's slacks—as there will be no cuffs on men's trousers. . . . Otherwise, the effect was to save material and at the same time avoid any drastic and arbitrary interference with style.

WPB's effort was to strike an average and then to move within that average to effect savings. It won't affect clothes for this spring and summer anyway since most of them are already made.

BUY COAL NOW

OPA warns that you'd better buy your coal to next winter now or soon. . . . we may not be able to spare transportation space next fall to get it from the mines.

The jewelry industry has until May 15 to use up what silver or gold-plated copper it has in inventory—and no more copper after that.

The supply of adult bicycles has been "frozen," and bicycles will be sold to other civilians afterwards.

The Red Cross will collect those alive a profit on their sale to wool processors.

After June 30, tin may be used to can only a limited variety of condensed soups.

F. D. R. Birthday Ball Receipts Set Record

President Roosevelt's Diamond Jubilee Birthday Celebration, held last winter has netted $2,300,000 for the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, and returns from 1,300 counties in the United States are yet to be received.

The total net of the 1941 campaign, which at that time constituted a new high record was $2,104,460.53.

HOW THE New War Conservation Order

AFFECTS TELEPHONE SERVICE

To conserve vital war materials, the War Production Board has limited replacements or additions to existing telephone plant equipment.

As a result, some types of equipment and services normally provided by the telephone company will not be available to civilians as heretofore.

The order is expected to save many thousands of tons of vitally needed rubber, copper, zinc, lead, iron, steel and other scarce metals. Southern Bell is complying with the order by doing its utmost in every respect to achieve the desired results in saving materials.

Within the limitations imposed by the order, the Company and its more than 27,000 men and women will continue in every possible way to furnish you dependable, efficient service.

We know that we may depend upon your wholehearted cooperation.
