DETAILS MAPPED FOR REGISTERING MEN OF 45 TO 65

Not Liable For Military Service and So No Lottery is Planned

Instructions have been sent to the County Draft Board about the registration, on April 27, of "all men who attained their forty-fifth birthday on or before February 16, 1942, and have not reached their sixty-fifth birthday."

Volunteers will conduct the registration and will record the same information as was recorded for men of the first three registrations.

Hours of the registration will be between 7 A. M. and 9 P. M. on April 27, but State Directors have been authorized to begin registration on April 25 to keep registration places open on April 26 as well as the following day or at any other additional days in advance deemed desirable.

As the men of the fourth registration are not liable for military service there will be no national lottery for them, and no order numbers issued although serial numbers will be placed on registration cards.

The Chairman of the County Board will be charged with providing registration places and securing volunteer registrars, without expense to the Government.

Because of the difficulties which may be experienced with elderly registrants, registration places must be carefully located throughout the area and sufficient registrars provided so that registrants will not face transportation difficulties or long delays at the registration places.

The questions on the registration card pertain to the registrant's name, place of residence, mailing address, telephone, age in years and date of birth, place of birth, name and address of a person who will always know the registrant's whereabouts, his employer's name and address, and the place of his employment or business.

OFFICES BEGGING

didate has yet announced, and so far as can be learned, none has been seriously considered. There probably will be one, however.

Marion Morrow, of the Violet section, was given the Republican nomination for Register of Deeds, and will try to defeat "Bass" Padgett. His party admits that it will be a hard fight, for Mr. Padgett has held the office many years, is thoroughly familiar with every detail of the rather involved duties, and has a wide following.

The big fight of the election—and it promises to be a toe-to-toe battle with no quarter asked or given by either side, will be for the office of Sheriff. Lester Mason, who has held the office twice, and who was defeated by Carl Townson last time, is running on the Democratic ticket. Sheriff Townson, who had stated repeatedly that his private business would not allow him to make the race again, changed his mind at the last minute and accepted renomination.

These two old-timers are expected to make the fight.

THIS BUSINESS OF Living

SUSAN THAYER

My next door neighbor stopped in yesterday, full of foreboding. She had talked to somebody else who'd recently been in Washington. You can guess the kind of things she said as soon as she got in the door—that we were bungling our war effort—that people in Washington were confused and inefficient—that men were playing politics "as usual"—and finally, that she was ashamed of the country and couldn't see for the life of her how we were going to win the war!

I invited her to take off her hat and relax while I made some tea and got out some of the honey cookies I've just learned to make.

"Now look here, Jane," I said after she'd sipped some of the tea and began to calm down. "No matter what anybody tells you, you've no business to go around spreading gloom. Some things may be a mess in Washington. They probably are in all the capitals of the world, only we don't hear about others."

"But that isn't the whole story by a good deal. And while you've been hearing things, I've been reading things in the newspapers—good, encouraging things, that make me proud of this country and confident that we'll come through this war with colors flying. You know, a newspaper man who's been all over the world and covered everything from garden club exhibits to murders and wars isn't one to rave."

Jane nodded her agreement.

"And when one of these hard-boiled, clear-sighted men writes enthusiastically about a thing, it means something, doesn't it?"

Jane nodded again.

"Well, nowadays, a lot of them are raving. They're throwing their hats in the air and simply letting themselves go in stories that send thrills up your spine the way a good, loud parade band does. We've always had a genius for mass production. We started it, and we've always done it better than any other nation—the efficient Germans included. Today American industry has taken all of this 'know how' and experience and put it to work for Uncle Sam. Apparently the results are something to marvel at. Listen to this, for instance," I said, and then read her just one paragraph from a recent story written by a famous columnist after visiting a huge Detroit plant that is making the machines of war. Speaking of a visitor to the plant, he says:

"Once he has entered the colossal structure he is suffused with the feeling that American industry will triumph over every obstacle that has been set against it—Hitler and the Japanese, as well as politics and other forms of internal selfishness. And then—"If Washington can transform peace to war as the Detroit area has, it won't be too long now."

"So forget about Washington," I told Jane, "and think about the factories of America. It's on what they're doing, and not on what people are saying, that Victory depends."

PAP

By Stanley Johnson
Director of Public Relations
University of Tennessee

The other day PAP got to thinking about the Fourth Estate. All at once he woke up and wondered!

Why Fourth Estate?
And so being an individual of great intellectual curiosity, he looked the thing up.

In feudal Europe three estates ruled the people. These estates made up the government. They were: the nobles, the clergy, and the commoners. Finally, the press itself became so powerful that it was considered a Fourth Estate.

Thomas Babington, Lord Macaulay, is credited with the remark: "The gallery in which the reporters sit has become a fourth estate of the realm."

In our own country today the three agencies of greatest influence may (what do you think?) be: the church. If so, the Press would seem to remain the Fourth Estate.

Just how important is the Press? At the close of 1940 there were 1998 daily newspapers in the United States with a circulation of 40,772,937. The combined total of dailies, weeklies, semi-weeklies, bi-weeklies, and tri-weeklies was 13,206. In other words, what we call the "weekly press" included some 11,000 newspapers with a probable total circulation of 20,000,000. Some authorities give higher figures.

The 1940 population of the United States is 131,669,275, with an average family of 3.8 persons, or around 34,000,000 families. In other words again, there are 1.2 dailies for every family in the United States and nearly two-thirds of a weekly.

The hometown paper enters most of the homes. It furnishes not only news, but "food for thought."

More than 200,000,000 board feet of insulating materials will be needed this year for the cold-storage plants of military cantonments, packing plants, creameries, ice-cream plants and commercial refrigerators.

I ASK YOUR VOTE FOR COUNTY COMMISSIONER

From the middle District of Murphy, Peachtree and Brasstown. This post is now held by Mr. T. P. Calhoun, who, I understand, does not wish to run again.

I Am A Democrat

I hope, however, that some of my friends on the other side—and I have many friends who are Republicans—will support me, too.

If Elected, I will be for All the people in my district, regardless of party.

I promise honest, conscientious service and hope that you will give me your vote.

J. H. STRATTON

Notice to The Voters Of Cherokee County

Having been asked by several of our leading men in the different sections of the County to run for the office of Clerk of the Superior Court, on the Democratic ticket, I have decided after careful consideration, that I will enter the race.

I ask your support, and I promise that if nominated and elected, I will do my best to give honest and faithful service.

I am a veteran of the First World War, and if they would accept me, I would not be running for any office—I would be back in the army again. As it is, I ask your vote.
