Murphy Seniors To Give Kaufman-Hart Hit Comedy

A merry mad comedy about a wacky Manhattan family whose members do exactly as they please has been chosen by the senior class of Murphy High School as its senior play, to be presented in Murphy School Auditorium April 11 and 12 under the direction of John Jordan, announces Mrs. R. S. Bault. This is "You Can't Take It With You," the Broadway hilarity hit by George S. Kaufman and Moss Hart, which presents the world's most rugged individualists—the daffy Sycamore family, says Mrs. Bault.

Heading the tribe of genial madcaps is Grandpa Vanderhof (Guy Dockery), who for thirty-five years has confined his activities to hunting snakes, practicing jart throwing, attending commencement exercises, and ignoring his income tax payment. A large cast from the ranks of the class will be playing some of the most unpredictable characters ever seen on a stage, including Emma Jean Shields, as Penelope; Elmer Taylor, as Boris; Mary Ann Gaddis, as Essie; Bill Chastain, Ray Sims, Bob Boling, Frances Robinson, Noah Johnson, Jr., Virginia Brannon, Frances Sue Ferguson, Harry Ingram, Floyd Chastain, Louise Hall and Barbara Ledford.

Hiwassee Seniors Present "Ready Made Family"

The Senior Class of Hiwassee Dam School will present a comedy drama "A Ready Made Family" next Friday evening at the school. The drama was written by Jay Tobias, well-known author of plays for amateur productions.

James Osborne, school principal says, "This comedy involves the widow, Mrs. Agnes Martin, and her three children, and the widower, Henry Turner, and his two children. The children are opposed to the marriage of the parents until they learn the "hard way" the parents are not so mercenary as the children. The fits of Bob, the manias of Sammie, the diabolical tricks of Grace, and the scheming of the two older girls, Marilee and Doris, supply the major portion of the comedy. Nicodemus and Begonia are the colored maid and gardener. Miss Lydia, the old maid sister-in-law, furnishes the ghost. Come join an evening of good fun and laughter with the other people of the community."
