By PHYLLIS M. SNYDER

Regional Librarian

Two books The Berkshire Knitting Mills have been added to the Andrews Carnegie Library. Presented by S. J. Gernert, these volumes will become part of the Hugo

Hammerich Memorial Collection. PARTNERS: A HISTORY OF THE DEVELOPMENT OF THE WYOMISSING INDUSTRIES was written in honor of Ferdinand

Thun and Henry Janssen, founders of the organization of which Berkshire is an affiliate. The committee employee who compiled it have filled the volumes with human interest stories and photographs. (Even the watch dog Leo figures in this account of the associations who contributed to the development of the industries.) The changing mode of fashion is as well illustrated as the technical improvements in manufacture.

INDUSTRIAL BERKS COUNTY, 1748-1948 is a pictorial record of Reading and Berks County, the Pennsylvania home of Berkshire's parent plant. Published by the Berkshire Knitting Mills on the occasion of Reading's 200th Anniversary, it describes the way of life in "the heart of Pennsylvania German county". There are chapters on agriculture, industry, transportation and clothing and food. The latter mentions such Pennsylvania Dutch specialties as panhaas, shoofly cake, schnitz and knepp, saur-kraut, and kuddleleck.

Either of these books may be borrowed from the Andrews Library. A copy of PARTNERS: A HISTORY OF THE WYOMISSING INDUSTRIES is in the Nantahala Regional Library as well and may be requested from the Murphy Library or any Cherokee County bookmobile stations.

Andrews Lions To See Film On "Fishin' For Fun"

"Fishin' For Fun", a new 2-reel sound motion picture starring Ben Hardesty, U. S. professional all-around bait and fly-casting champion, will be shown to an audience of some 40 members of the Lions at the Youth Building in Andrews, Thursday, April 24, at 8 p. m.

This is announced by A. B. Chandler, Jr., Manager of the Dickey Chevrolet Co., Andrews, who disclosed that a 16 mm print of the film for the special showing is being obtained from the Detroit headquarters of the Fisher Body Division of General Motors, the firm that produced and distributed the picture.

Described as an important contribution to fishing lore by conservation authorities and others who have viewed it, "Fishin' For Fun" presents a comprehensive exhibition of the art of fishing and casting, encouraging participation in the sport and emphasizing the thrill every fisherman seeks, according to Mr. Chandler, who states that the film is completely devoid of advertising save for the credit titles.

Hardesty, a plain and fancy fisherman who truly labors for love, is described by Ted Husing who narrates the film as "a guy who drops 'em in a tea cup as far away as you can see it."

In "Fishin' For Fun", the champion gives an exciting and dramatic display of angling for trout, bass, bonefish, sailfish and tarpon. The trout sequences were taken in Northern Michigan and show a thrilling series of shots while Hardesty was hooking, playing and landing three varieties of trout, brown, brook and rainbow.

The scene then shifts to a small lake in New Jersey famous for its bass fishing. Working from a boat, Hardesty gives a colorful display of first landing a fighting Jersey small mouth and then a scrappy large mouth with a little bull dog blood in its veins.

Then, for the salt water enthusiasts, the champion engages in a battle to the finish with bait-slammung sailfish off the coast of Florida.

The next sequence is a thriller for both salt water and freshwater fishermen. Believe it or not, the champion goes after the white fox of the shallow flats, bonefish, with fly tackle and gets him. For the climax, Hardesty exhib-
