Who Wants To Go To School"

Not all kids look at it that way. But at some stage in the life of most boys there comes a time when it's just a pain in the neck—which interrupts his usual activities and chains him to a desk when he wants to be out of doors with the gang.

Saving money is a little like that. We can all think of a great many things we would like to have. With a few bucks in our pocket we are tempted to forget the future and spend it on something that gives us temporary pleasure but no lasting benefit.

Saving money is like going to school . . . In one case you are laying up $ $ for future use and happiness and independence—in the other you are storing up knowledge that will make a better life for you in the future. Neither one can fully be appreciated until later. But with the future in mind you can get a lot of pleasure out of both saving and going to school. These two are your best investments in the future.
