Cigarettes Are Stolen From Hackney-Carolina

A clever thief or thieves made away with approximately $170 worth of cigarettes from Hackney-Carolina Wholesalers Wednesday, August 27, between midnight and 4 a. m., according to Buren Grant, chief deputy sheriff. Whoever stole the 11 cases of cigarettes climbed on the roof of the building and sawed a bar out from the second story window and, once on the inside, forced one of the ground floor doors open, placing the cases outside. Then the person or persons closed the door and went out the way he or they came in, pulling the bar back into place. Grant says no arrests have been made, but said there are a number of suspects. SBI agent, P. R. Kitchen, and Police Chief Neil Sneed are working on the case.

Indigo Bunting Destroys Insects

When an Indigo Bunting alights in a fruit tree and nibbles at a few blossoms, it's easy to forgive him, because he is so helpful in destroying insects. A fragrant but temp's him now and then, but ordinarily he'd rather be eating cankerworms, beetles, grasshoppers, and other pests. That is why people in the eastern half of the United States are glad to see Indigo Buntings arrive each spring. The small birds are welcome visitors all the way from North Dakota to Maine and south to Texas and Florida. Throughout this area, says the National Wildlife Federation, Indigo Buntings make their summer homes in bushy fields, along hedges, and among small trees. It is hard to see the female in these surroundings, because she is plain brown all over. And the male seems to be playing the trick of changing colors. In the right light, he is a rich, deep blue, but in a shadow he may appear to be anything from dull gray to coal black. There is seldom any doubt about who he is, though, because he is almost constantly singing a lively, cheerful song. It is pleasant on a hot summer day to hear him saying, "Sweet-sweet, chew-chew, sweet-sweet, sweet-sweet, sway-sway, sway-sway."
