Frank Crawford

A loyal servant to the people of Cherokee County is being buried today. He died as he lived, serving the county and people

The life-and death-of Frank Charles Crawford, 45-year-old sheriff of Cherokee County, can be summed up in four words-he was a peace officer.

As an officer upholding the peace and dignity of this county, he was a dedicated man. No man can serve as an officer of the law unless he feels it is his duty to stand between the lawful and the Frank was drawn to that vocation and he served it well. He made it his life's work to secure the peace by serving as a patrol-man for the town of Murphy, as Murphy's police chief and later as a patrolman-guard for TVA at Hiwassee Dam.

Living Alert Lessen for March 8, 1953

ATHAT is this parable of the makes a simple streightforward suggestion. The story has to do with emergency, the unexpected and how to meet it. If everything had gone according to plan, the foolish virgins would not have been in trouble. They had all the oil they thought they would need. When they set out, it was the wise virgins who looked foolish. Why carry those extra flasks of oil? Wasn't it enough to carry a lamp without being bothered with oil besides? But when the hours wore on and on, those extra flasks did not look so foolish. The wise virgins were ready for the unexpected; the foolish were not.

Life's Emergencies

If the future were as plain to us as the past, then (we think) life might be easier. But that is not the way life goes. There is much we can count on; otherwise there would never be any use in making any kind of plans.

will be things ahead we don't count on. Disease or death may enter the home unannounced Temptation may lift its ugly head among the flowers of our happiness. The person who goes through life prepared only for what he expects, will find himself in the dark. Only by being prepared for what we don't expect, can we rise to life's emergencies. But how can we prepare for what we don't expect? Of course we can't prepare in detail for the unforeseen. What we can manage to have is a reservoir of strength; for physical emergencies reserves of health: for moral emergencies, reserves of character; for spiritual emergencies. reserves of faith.

The Unexpected Is The Test

When there is a big fire, or some extraordinary disaster like a bombing or an explosion, the police of a great city will send re-serves to the stricken area to guard against looters. Now as Dr. Wehrli says, the police aren't specially worried about ordinary

But the people who do the looting at fires are the ordinary people, who in ordinary situations wouldn't think of stealing. They are honest enough for all routine situations. They would not think of breaking a door down in order to steal. But when a fire or an earthquake opens the door, and the lights go out, then these "hondon't have the reserves of character to carry them through the moral emergency.
Sometimes again the emergency will be an opportunity. When an important position falls vacant, who is chosen to fill it? The man who is ready for it. But who is ready for the bigger job? The man who worked harder than he needed to on the smaller job; the man who learned more than he had to know to hold down the smaller job. If a man isn't ready for a bigger job than he has, he isn't likely ever to get his chance at it when the bigger one is open.

On The Alert

Three pieces of advice can be given to those who wish to live on the alert. One is: Keep physically fit. That may sound too ob vious, but it is not, as any doctor could tell you. If your health breaks down you are stopped in your tracks no matter what your work may be. Whether you aim to be a missionary, a farmer or a he a missionary, a farmer or a governor, you are going to need all the health you can have. Don't cut down your body's efficiency by the use of liquor, drugs, overesting, undersleeping or what not. The same can be said of the second point: Keep mentally fit. Keep your mind a bit sharper than it needs to be right now, sharp enough for the unlooked-for opportunity or problem or responsibility.

Again it is needless to say that the use of alcohol is one of the commonest enemies of mental fit-

And finally: keep spiritually fit.
The Holy Spirit is no substitute for your own hard and careful thinking; but the closer you live to the God who is Lord of both today and tomorrow, the more ready you are going to be for whatever he may send.
