

Woman Talk

By EMILY COSTELLO

On that beautiful Monday morning we had this week I drove out to Boiling Springs to the LUTHER DOCKERY home, and had a mighty nice chat with Mrs. D. Luther was out on the mountains somewhere looking for his cattle.

And I don't know when I enjoyed a pop visit any more. Maybe it was the weather, and the green fields so much greener because of the week end's rain. But it was one relief not to be choked by dust everytime a car passed.

I was thinking about all the folks living along unpaved roads during the dry weather, and how the women must be going crazy trying to keep the dust down.

But, anyhow, now we've had rain and we all ought to be feeling a lot more cheerful in general. Enough so, in fact, to make our contributions to the exhibits at the fair.

There ought to be an abundance of canned goods, handwork, flowers and other entries in the women's divisions at the fair. One reason is because I know I never heard of so much canning going on as I have this summer.

Of course it has been dry, and the flowers might not be what they have been but I've seen some beauties this year. Mrs. Dockery had one of the loveliest purple dahlias I've seen. If you've got a blossom, or a potted plant, that you think is pretty, chances are lots of other ladies would enjoy seeing it, too.

You know how much you enjoy looking at things other women have brought—and remember they would enjoy seeing you exhibits just as much. Now even I'm going to take an exhibit to the fair. And I can't do anything, so you other ladies have no excuse.

See you at the fair!

MOVED AWAY

POLLY AND JACK HOUNSON and family have taken up residence in Atlanta after moving some-time last week.

I noticed that the BILL GOSSETTS were moving into the Lay house on Valley River Ave., vacated by the Hounsons. I believe the Gossetts purchased the house.

THE COLLEGE SET

With tears and adieux, the college crowd is leaving town daily by ones and twos and threes. With the returning group, it's old stuff by now, but it's quite an event for the freshmen.

JO ANN ADAMS left last week end for Mars Hill and SALLY MORRIS is already settled at Furman University in Greenville. S. C. MILDRED TAYLOR and ANNE DOCKERY will leave, or have left for Young Harris College, not so far away.
