County Farmers May Still Ask Cost Sharing From Govt

Cherokee County farmers still have the opportunity of visiting the County ASC Office and requesting approval of Federal cost-sharing on many conservation practices needed in the county.

"Federal cost-sharing" consists of a payment by the government of a part of the "out-of-the-pocket" cost of carrying out a practice. This cost-share paid by the government may be up to 50 per cent of the cash outlay involved in carrying out the practice.

H. B. McNabb, Chairman of the Cherokee County ASC Committee, reminds Cherokee County farmers that there will be approximately 1,100 acres diverted from the production of wheat and corn, in this county in 1954.

"The average farmer can make no better use of this tremendous amount of diverted acreage than to put it in permanent pasture for existing or contemplated livestock herds," says Mr. McNabb. Many farmers who, by reason of declining prices or a bad crop year, would need financial assistance in establishing pasture on these diverted acres may be eligible for such assistance in the form of "Federal cost-sharing" under the 1954 Agricultural Conservation program.
