Mayor Millsaps Names January "Egg Month"

L. L. Millsaps, mayor of Robbinsville, this week proclaimed January as Egg Month in Robbinsville and urged people to consume more "of this health-giving food." Mayor Millsaps proclamation follows: "January has been designated as Egg Month by the Nation's poultry industry. Homemakers who watch their food budgets will recognize this as a period of opportunity, for eggs are abundant, low in price, and of the highest quality. "Eggs help balance the diets of individuals from babyhood through old age; they build up vigor to help ward off winter colds. They are easy to prepare, and appeal to any meal and make cooking a pleasure. "Every extra egg consumed by each one of us during this period of abundance will contribute to the betterment of this country's general health and economy. Now, therefore I, L. L. Millsaps, mayor of the city of Robbinsville, do hereby proclaim January 1935 as January Egg Month, and urge the people of Robbinsville to consume more of this health-giving food."

Grange Stands Against Sales Tax On Groceries

The Robbinsville Grange recently went on record against any legislature to place sales tax on food sold over the grocery counter. A resolution passed by the subordinate grange read: "Be it resolved that the Robbinsville Subordinate Grange No. 1161 go on record as deploring any effort of the legislature to place any sales tax or otherwise, on food sold over the grocery counter. "We grange members contend that such an effort to tax food would serve to undo the very things that the organization attempts to do that of promoting the welfare and continued improvement of rural life, economy and its people." The resolution was signed by K. S. Clem, chairman, and Gwyn Denton, grange master.

A copy of the resolution was sent to T. M. Jenkins, Graham County representative in Raleigh.
