Milk And Cherokee County

Pierre Mendes-France, prime minister of France, has attracted a great deal of attention to the milk industry in the past few months. He wants his people to cut down on wine and drink more milk.

And Prof. Hugh Riddell of the University of Vermont said in an article in the December issue of "The Milk Dealer" that M. France just might get things his way.

Prof. Riddell went on to point out that one glass of milk provides more food value for the money than any other food. He said it has been figured that to buy the calcium, top quality protein and vitamins in a quart of milk would entail the purchase of nearly 60 cents worth of other foods.

He points out in his article, "Milk-Vitality for All Ages," that even at 23 cents a quart—less than the price of a pack of cigarettes—milk is worth that for its calcium content alone. And we get the protein, vitamins and other food nutrients for free.

Now from what little we know of the French and from what a lot we have heard of them, we are not sure we can go along with Prof. Riddell's prediction on M. France's project.

But we go all the way with him on his statements about milk. It is nature's most nearly perfect food. And milk experts have pointed out that some of the very best milk produced comes from this Cherokee County section.

It is just plain good sense to buy Cherokee County milk since it is of the very best quality and it helps the economy of the county.

Parking Meters

Murphy's Town Council took the legal step Monday night that made parking meters for the town a reality. The parking meter ordinance was voted in and actual installation is awaiting final shipment of part of the equipment.

The Scout has been in favor of parking meters from the beginning for two reasons: (1) We felt there is a definite need for meters in Murphy, and (2) merchants of Murphy voted in favor of meters.

Some people advocate that parking meters will pull automobiles off main streets and give the town a "dead look." That may be true to a certain extent during week days. The streets do look full now and the town does look prosperous with cars filling most of the parking spaces, but that's a hollow picture to most of Murphy's merchants.

Practically all those cars are owned by people who are not shopping with our retail merchants. They are tying up space that could be used by customers.

The Scout agrees that there will be a vacant look about the streets for a while. But we believe that a potential customer will find a parking place on rainy days and on Saturdays.

And that's what Mr. and Mrs. Shopper wants, that's what the merchants want and that's what the Scout wants.

Smith Slips

According to the last edition of Publishers' Auxiliary, a newspaper for newspaper men. Sears, Roebuck and Co. is introducing a pocket or handbag size alarm that sets off a loud piercing siren audible for five blocks in an emergency.

Now don't you know Diet Smith, Dick Tracy's friend, is hacked that he didn't think of that one first?

RECORD EGG PRODUCTION
RALEIGH, N. C.—Laying flocks in the Tar Heel State produced an estimated 102 million eggs during November—the highest production record for that month, being 12 percent above the previous record of 91 million in 1953.

The North Carolina Crop Reporting Service reports there were 8,944,000 layers on hand during November compared to 8,972,000 a year earlier. The rate of lay during November 1954 of 1,140 eggs per 100 layers was 12 percent above the rate for November 1953 of 1,014 eggs per 100 layers.

Mrs. Don Witherspoon returned Monday from a visit with her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Brown and family in Chicago.

LANEY IN NAVY
Virgil Laney of Route 1, Murphy enlisted in the Navy Dec. 30 and is now taking basic training at Great Lakes, Ill. L. E. Fay, chief petty officer in charge of the recruiting station at Murphy, said Laney will receive 14 days leave before he is assigned to a duty station.

Cpl. Robert Hampton, stationed at Fort Benning, Ga., spent the Christmas holidays with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Hampton, of Ranger.

Expert Gives Hints On Quality Eggs

Although the quality of an egg most of its original goodness or cannot be improved after it is laid, high quality can be preserved by proper care and handling according to C. F. Parrish, head of poultry extension at State College.

In the production of high quality eggs, it is necessary that a few simple rules be followed. One of the first is keeping only purebred poultry.

Parrish says that although crossbreds are very popular and some will keep crossbred poultry, producers of quality eggs should be careful about the particular cross that they purchase if they desire to produce quality eggs of uniform shell color. Mottled flocks just do not fit into a quality egg program.

Proper feeding of the laying flock is very essential, too. It should be fed scratch feed and a laying mash of high quality, balanced in protein, fat, carbohydrates, vitamins, and minerals, he says.

However, if the poultryman chooses, he may feed an all-mash ration, and regular and limited amounts of green feed.

The type of house, the equipment in the house, and the amounts and kinds of litter used are very important. Some type of floor other than a dirt floor should be used and this should be kept covered with a clean, deep litter.

Overcrowding of the laying house should be avoided, with at least four square feet of floor space allowed for each bird housed.

As a final tip, Parrish advised the dropping boards or roosting racks be enclosed with wire netting to keep the birds away from droppings.
