Ketner Named June Dairy Month Head

Appointment of A. Q. Ketner as June Dairy Month chairman for Cherokee County has been announced by Morris L. McCough of Asheville, Western North Carolina Chairman.

"Dairying has become a $100,000,000 industry for North Carolina families," states Mr. Ketner. "This is reason enough for observing June Dairy Month. But more important is the fact that we are drinking far too little milk in our state, only a little over half of what we should. During June, we hope to get more people in Cherokee County to say 'Make It Milk'. The milk habit is an habit we can't go wrong on."

Mr. Ketner stated that the purpose of this program is to acquaint the public with the nutritional facts about milk.

He stated that the American homemaker spends 15 per cent of her food budget for dairy products, but this actually buys 30 per cent of her family's nutritional needs. On a nutritional basis, this makes dairy products the most economical source of vitamins, minerals, protein and energy - supplying foods.

The dairy farmers, milkplants, agricultural agencies, health departments and many civic groups are joining forces to let the people of western North Carolina know that plenty of good fresh milk is available, and that during June it is the richest and best testing of any time.

According to Mr. Ketner, plans will be worked out soon on the various activities to be carried out in the county.

Chatuge Is Lowered For Hiwassee, Apalachia Work

The elevation of the Chatuge Lake, in Western North Carolina and North Georgia, is being lowered, TVA said today, to provide storage space which will be needed later in the year when the discharge of water at the Hiwassee Dam, downstream, will have to be discontinued because of construction activities, and because of maintenance work at the Apalachia Dam.

TVA said another purpose of the present drawdown is to supply water for Hiwassee and other down stream plants.

Elevation of the lake at this time is at approximately 1,897 feet above sea level. TVA engineers say that if normal rainfall and runoff are experienced over the next few months, the lake will be drawn gradually about 17 feet or to elevation 1,880, by early July.

On the other hand, they say, should rainfall and runoff be below it may be necessary to draw the lake down another 20 feet.

The engineers say that in several months, probably in August, it will be necessary to draw the Hiwassee and Apalachia Lakes down. After that, and during the progress of the construction work at Hiwassee, which will take about five weeks, the Hiwassee and Chatuge Lakes will be allowed to fill.

Because of the powerhouse construction work now in progress at the Nottely Dam in north Georgia, water cannot be discharged from that lake over the spillway, and the water in Nottely Lake will remain near spillway level.

This level will continue probably until late in the fall, the engineers say.

MARRED BEAUTY

This "beauty spot" is just inside Cherokee County on the Broadtown highway right at the county line. The trash dump was pointed out by the Murphy Garden Club. The club is interested in cleaning up all highways leading into Murphy. (Scout Photo)
