KIDDIE PARK HOURS LISTED

The new kiddie park under the Murphy summer recreation program is getting a big rush from Murphy's younger set.

Mrs. Ruth Cheney, supervisor of the park, said because of the large number of children using the park, a new schedule has been set up as follows:

Monday, Wednesday, Thursday, Saturday, 2:30 - 5 p. m., children from two to six years old.

Tuesday and Friday, 2:30 - 5 p. m., children six to 12 years old.

Mrs. Cheney said the older children are asked not to come except on the two days designated for them and the younger tots are requested not to come except on the four days allotted for them.

Mrs. Cheney and her assistant are on hand each afternoon except Sunday to supervise play in the new park.

Servicemen Must Renew Drivers Licenses By Mail Under New NC Law

The Motor Vehicle Department announced today a new driver's license regulation that will affect thousands of Tar Heel servicemen stationed outside the state.

The new legislation passed by the recent General Assembly became effective July 1 and requires out of state Tar Heel servicemen to renew their operator's permits by mail.

Formerly no renewal was necessary so long as the driver was in service at a military installation outside North Carolina.

However, after July 1 renewals must be secured. The agency said applicants should notify the Motor Vehicle Department shortly before their license is to expire. A renewal form will then be mailed for the applicant to complete and return. It must be signed by the applicant's commanding officer.

The ruling applies only to Tar Heel military drivers outside the state, the department emphasized. Those within North Carolina must see a license examiner.

Miss Doris June Cruse of Andrews this week was announced as the winner of a scholarship to Western Carolina College, Cullowhee.

She was one of a number of sons and daughters of North Carolina war veterans who are either deceased or disabled.

Among persons on the commission awarding the scholarship was Frank W. Swan of Andrews.

Judy Bristol Honors Bride

Miss Judy Bristol honored Miss Jan Gay Neal, recent bride, with a miscellaneous shower in the Bristol home on Thursday evening. Approximately 40 guests attended.

After bridal games and charades the bride received her gifts by finding them in treasure hunts, with information suspended from two large white wedding bells.

A pink and white color scheme was noted in all appointments. The bride's table was covered with a white linen cloth centered with an arrangement of mixed garden flowers. A three tiered wedding cake topped with bride and groom figurines was placed at one end of the table.

Miss Beverly Clark of Richmond, Va., cousin of the hostess presided at the punch bowl. She was assisted in serving by Miss Ann Bristol, Miss Pat Kilpatrick, and Miss Gibson.

Gifts were also presented to Miss Ann Bristol who leaves soon for Washington, D. C., Misses Cheryl Faires of Charlotte and Miss Beverly Clark house guests of the Bristols.

Condition and yield reports made by growers as of June 1 indicated a N. C. rye crop of 266,000 bushels. This is about the same as the 1954 crop.

SPEAKING OF CARDS

CARD MANNERS

Good manners and sportsmanship are just as welcome at the card table as they are on any other occasion where we get together with old friends or make new acquaintances. But some people automatically forget their manners the moment they sit down at a card table. They tend to make little comments, argue over a card which should or should not have been played, show annoyance when an opponent makes a good play or when a partner makes a poor one, or indulge in a gloating expression if dealt a particularly good hand.

Actually, a game of cards is fun and there should be no room for poor sportsmanship in a friendly card game. Too much adverse criticism can make your partner nervous and tell him so that he is unable to concentrate on the proper play. He is trying to do the best he can and criticism will only make him self-conscious and probably cause him to play worse.

One habit, particularly annoying to all card players, is that of arranging your hand, card by card, as each is dealt. Good manners dictate that it is better to wait until every player has been dealt his cards and only then to pick up your hand. And gather in your tricks neatly and quickly—it's an inconvenience to your opponents and to your partner not to be able to see how many tricks you have.

A good idea when you're planning an evening at cards is to make sure that your card decks are fresh and clean and not dog-eared. It's unpleasant to pick up cards which stick together, or whose faces are grubby with grime and dirt. It's not only pleasant to play with crisp clean cards but it makes dealing simpler too. And your guests are especially complimented when they see you open fresh new decks of playing cards for them. Also don't forget to provide well-sharpened pencils for keeping score.

Just remember that card games are for fun and relaxation. The card table shouldn't become a battleground or a place to check your manners and sportsmanship. Have fun!
