German Farmlands, Flowers Cars, Interest Murphy Couple

FIRST IN A SERIES

23, June, 1955

... We got to Augsburg at 3:00 today. We left the Butner at 8:00 last night and got on a Pullman—sleep wagon, they call it, which was real nice. We had two compartments — traveled first class. Debbie and I slept in one part and Bud had the adjoining one. We had good meals on the train and changed at Frankfurt for a day coach which was also real nice and roomy.

Germany is quite different from what I expected. It is very, very clean and some places are real modern. Near the coast they use fluorescent lights for street lights. Some towns even have neon signs. The only American sign I've seen is one advertising Coca-Cola.

It's mostly a farming country and the land is really beautiful. No matter how big or little a farm or garden is, it is planted in neat squares — each kind of food separated by a small walk and flowers.

We saw Heidelberg, Frankfurt, Stuttgart and quite a few other places. There are some of the most beautiful old buildings, churches and churches! And flowers galore! They have flower gardens everywhere, even on balconies of buildings.

Some places are quite flat, and others pretty mountainous. We saw some mountains so steep they're almost straight up. But the people still farm it, they terrace the hillside, build rock walls to hold every three or four rows and narrow steps up the hill. It sure took work and it's a beautiful thing to see. Not an inch of land goes to waste.

In the cities the houses are built practically on top of each other, they're so close. They're very narrow and three or four stories high. They all have red tile roofs and are painted dull colors, or made of brick.

Heidelberg has a very modern train station. The terminal is built up over the street and railroad tracks. It is really nice.

We're staying at a German Hotel tonight and so are four other couples here. Our quarters are ready but Bud has to sign for them first and maybe we can move in Saturday.

A PRETTY PLACE Augsburg is a real pretty place, there are quite a few big modern buildings, only I can't read what any of them are. It seems to be a large place. There's a large park across from the hotel in the center of town. And the most beautiful flowers.

Group Says Will Not Attempt Fair Without Agent

The Cherokee County Fair Association this week said a county fair will not be held this year.

The association said it was calling off the fair because it felt a fair could not be held successfully without the aid of a county agent.

The decision was reached at a recent meeting of the association. Meanwhile, R. W. Shoffner, assistant director of the North Carolina Extension Service, said L. V. McMahan, assistant county agent will be transferred to another county.

The other county has asked for his services and McMahan agreed to the move, Shoffner said.

The difficulty over a county agent for Cherokee County started in the spring when the commissioners withdrew County funds from the salary paid G. H. Farley, then county agent.

C. E. Hyde, county attorney, said the commissioners have included in the new budget the county's normal amount to pay an agent if the state will pay the remainder of the salary.

The commissioners have selected A. Q. Ketter, Murphy man and former county agent, for the job, Mr Hyde said.

But Mr. Shoffner said that his office feels hiring Ketter would not clear up the difficulty in this county.

He pointed out that his office had nothing against Ketter as an agent. He said Ketter has been offered a job with the extension service in another county.

He said his office did not want personalities to enter into the county agent's job and he felt that would be the case if Ketter were employed in this county.

His office is interested in forestalling any further trouble in the agent's office, Mr. Shoffner said.

He said he felt that trouble could be avoided if another man for the job was agreed on between the commissioners and his office.

Mr. Shoffner said he wanted to "sit around a table" with the commissioners and work out the difficulty so that an agent can be brought into the county.

He is willing to meet with the commissioners to work out the trouble at any time, he said.

The extension service in Raleigh will not demand that any certain man be hired, Shoffner said. He pointed out that several men will be suggested until a man can be agreed upon.
