HIGH SCHOOL CONFUSION

One student says, "I know from geology and botany that the world took millions of years to be formed." The Bible states that God made the world in six days.

"I know from science that man is so much like the monkey." The Bible says, "God created man to His own image and likeness."

Is there an answer to such doubts and confusion? Yes! True religion and true science always agree because truth is one and God is the author of all truth. First, a fact in science must remain a fact in religion; but, a man must make sure he really has a fact, a certain truth, not just scientific theory that has never been proven. And second, a man must make sure he is defending true religion, not just a private opinion on some religious doctrine.

True science, rather than destroying or even weakening religion, confirms and illustrates it in every truth it discovers.

Next week this column will take up a question on evolution. As a working principle we know that whenever science provides real truth, it must agree with Divine Faith, because God is the author and preserver of all truth.

God love you now.
