Dear Sir:
I'd like to say a few words about the "Scout" if I may.

Please continue the fine job you are doing. You'll never know how much it helps to receive the Scout. I'm serving a hitch on one of the remote radar sites in Alaska and I sure do look forward to receiving the Scout. Quite a few of the guys here keep up with the news in it also.

One thing that makes it so welcome is that I know, personally, quite a few of the people written and featured in the paper. Also, please continue with lots of news from school.

With greatest appreciation for the fine job on the Scout. May it continue to be so.

Yours truly,

Medical Hints

By F. V. TAYLOR, M. D.

In case of sickness, what should you do 'till the doctor arrives or if a doctor is not needed?

Do's and don'ts: remember, it is better to do nothing than to do the wrong thing or give the wrong medicine.

I have seen severe burns covered with molasses and open arteries corded lightly above the wound making it bleed much more and children made sick by drugs prescribed by well-meaning neighbors.

Parents one of the most universal and harmful sins you practice is shaking or rocking your child.

Just let someone shake you or rock you as you do your child and see what happens to you. If you are not sick beforehand, you soon will be. When a child is sick or uncomfortable from any cause the last thing it needs or would ask for is to be shaken up. Please remember this and let your child be still.

Shaking, rocking or moving a child is as objectionable to a child as it would be to you and does untold harm.

One of the very common things a child has to deal with is a burn of greater or less degree. Don't let your neighbor prescribe. Instead, wet a cloth with boric acid solution and put it on the burn until the doctor dresses it. In case of bleeding, don't cord the limb. Take a piece of clean cloth and apply pressure on the bleeder until it stops. The normal blood pressure is just over 100mm and more pressure than this will dry the bleeding. If it is a large artery, keep the pressure on it until you can get to a doctor. In case of a broken bone, apply a board to the limb to hold it still until the doctor takes care of it.

One of the don'ts that is often not heeded to our regret is leaving poisonous or caustic drugs or chemicals where small children can get to it and drink it.

Look around and see if there's any kerosene, gas or bug poisons where a child can get to it. In spite of all the warnings, so often a child is brought in who has gotten to these things and been poisoned.

Don't expose your child to an open fire, especially girls who may have a thin dress which will blow

By HEINZ ROLLMAN

In last week's column I, unfortunately, interrupted myself by writing about the Southern part of India which has now a communist government. Since I felt I had to mention this major calamity which happened to the free world — namely, the communist victory in the recent election in a very important state in Southern India — today I want to write some more about the reasons why communism might attack us, if we don't make all the necessary arrangements to prevent them from living and following their "book."

I wrote about the fact that they are living by the book which Marx and Lenin have written. The communists feel that they cannot make the world over in their image and cannot control and rule the world as long as there is a strong United States of America.

If you try to compare them to decent countries or decent governments, or anything that you think is right and fair in life, then you might as well give up trying to ever understand their mentality and motivations, for you will never be able to understand.

You can understand the communists if you would, for instance, if you ever have the chance to compare them, compare them to someone you knew fairly well and who one day, all of a sudden, committed a crime that was probably almost unbelievable to you. You might have felt that after all, one doesn't know people too well until something drastic happens, either very good or very bad.

That is what you have to say about communism. You just don't know what they will do next, unless you follow closely what they have done in the past, and the absolutely incredible thing is that they have been able to get by with it for 40 years.

It would not be correct to say that Hitler alone started World War II. He would never have been able to do so if the communists would not have tried everything in their power to make him take that gamble.

In 1939, what Hitler was doing, basically, besides annexing a few neighboring countries (which in itself was a major crime), was to talk out of both corners of his mouth and a whistle out of the middle at the same time, strictly for propaganda reasons, for the German people. He wanted to take their minds off their abject misery, for misery certainly was in Germany for most people after Hitler came to power.

The Russians, however, for many years before 1939 had followed the path of "divide and rule", and Hitler, if he would not have gotten the assurance from the Russians that they would leave him alone while he invaded all of Europe, and then tried to invade England and America, would never have dared to start an aggressive war. Only the night when Hitler's secretary of state had signed a non-aggression pact with Stalin in Moscow, did he give the final instructions for the invasion of Poland and other countries.

What the Russians did not figure on was that once Hitler had conquered certain parts of Europe, that then he would turn right around and also attack Russia. On the day that happened, Churchill announced to the world that even though the communists live completely different from what we call living, we the free world, would have come to the immediate assistance of Russia since without our help, Hitler would defeat Russia — which he certainly would have — but I will never forget that I had the feeling that if the free world follows Churchill's very well meant advice, that then one day the whole world will suffer from communism. I never wished as much in my life that I was wrong, but just that time, unfortunately, I had to be right. I never hated a human being except Hitler, who killed my parents, but I had the feeling that if I had to choose, the world would be better off with Hitler in the long run than with communism. Hitler was just a man — communism, however, is a way of life. Nazism and world aggression had to die with Hitler's death; communism, so far during 40 years, has not changed by changing leaders.
