National Book Week To Be Observed Here

A number of new books will be on display next week at the Nantahala Regional Library here in observance of National Book Week, Nov. 18-23.

This is a marvelous year in which thousands of scientists all over the world are coordinating their efforts simultaneously to explore the mysteries of our planet, earth. The First International Geophysical Year, July 1957 through December 1958, extends the scope of its forerunners—two International Polar Years—to include exploration not only of the earth's surface, but its interior and its surrounding atmosphere.

In the 25 years since the last of these united scientific efforts, interest in our physical world and knowledge of it have increased tremendously. A fascinating factual literature for boys and girls has developed to keep pace with, and at the same time set the pace of their growing interests, answering their many questions and raising new ones.

But explorers are of many kinds, and today's children continue to discover themselves and the world in the literature of imagination as well as fact—stories of our own and other times, our own and other people, in folklore and fantasy, poetry and myth which describe and project the very essence of the human story.

Today's school public libraries offer a rich and stimulating supplement to school curricula, to newspaper and magazine reading, and to TV. Through books as diverse as their interests, today's boys and girls may explore the infinite possibility in all things great and small, and today's young explorers become tomorrow's best.

CARD OF THANKS

The family of the late Mrs. Minnie Rogers Tatham wishes to express their thanks and appreciation to the relatives, neighbors and many friends for their flowers, prayers and kind expressions of sympathy during the illness and death of their mother.

16-1tc The Children

Mr. and Mrs. Dave Carringer visited their daughter, Mrs. H. F. Williams and Mr. Williams in Knoxville over the week-end.

Land of Make Believe

How much fun boys and girls can have now, putting together favorite nursery rhymes and fairy stories. Gaily colored, molded polystyrene is the material used to make these exciting yet easily assembled story book toys.

It is possible to do "Hansel and Gretel and the Gingerbread House," "The Old Woman Who Lived in a Shoe," "Three Men in a Tub," "Goosey Gander's Castle" and other favorites. This new toy series offers a world of quiet fun for children for the "What do we do now?" times. They are also ideal for rainy day play and for the convalescent who needs rest in bed.

These toys can be used as permanent room decorations if the pieces are put together with plastic cement. Some of the older children may want to repaint some of the little figures.

The story-telling toys make ideal gifts for children and are not expensive, only $1.00 and $1.25. It is a good idea to keep several of these toys on hand for young visitors. They encourage quiet play and keep the youngsters occupied. These toys are now available in department stores and toy stores.

Take your problems to Church this week — millions leave them there!

CHURCH IS FOR ALL

"There goes that young preacher man that took over the village church. He's out tryin' to learn all he can about this country and the ways of us folks. Funny, he came out here from some town back East and everybody thought he would be tryin' to make us all over like the people he knew back home. We thought he wouldn't last through one winter. But that young fellow is made of better stuff than any of us, as would be proved if the situation were turned around. He's become one of us, too.

"And that ain't all. He's got the folks in our community goin' to church and likin' it. Always before church was mostly for our women folks and kids, but not any more. He's sold us on the idea that we all need the church. Since I started goin' it has helped me over many a rough spot. My picture of it is that everyone needs the Church."
