GARDEN TIME

Continuing where we stopped last week, with suggestions concerning suitable house plants...

This is not a complete list, as many of you will know, but it is a rather good one from which to choose.

This is not a good time to plan anything, with the temperatures very high, but better days are ahead...

From my vantage point I can see three bad spots in the lawn. There must be given attention this fall.

Some of the shrubs, Burfordi holly, flowering quince, ligustrum and others, are outgrowing their locations...

A planting is needed on the west side of the house to serve as a screen, or windbreak and snow barrier...

Too many trees were saved and now it is hard to cut them down. Will have to think this over.

Several terraces need stabilizing with a suitable ground cover—ivy, periwinkle, ophiopogon...

The perennials in the vegetable garden need attention—asparagus, strawberries, rhubarb...

The list may seem endless but it is worthwhile if you plan your work and work your plan.

Plenty Water Keeps Hens Cool, Laying

You can help your chickens beat the heat and keep on laying during this hot weather.

Chickens are like humans, says W. F. Andrews, poultry specialist for the N. C. Agricultural Extension Service...

In addition, reports will be made by experts on conditions in such areas as Russia, India, Asia and Indo-China.

Facing each other in a debate on nuclear tests, the possibility of nuclear controls or disarmament and the wisdom of American policy on nuclear affairs will be Navy Capt. John F. Morse Jr. special aide to the chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission...

Comfort is the key to keeping hens laying through the long hot summer. High temperatures tend to reduce egg production.

THIS WEEK - In Washington With Clinton Davidson

How much freedom from controls do farmers really want?

Washington expects an answer this week when wheat growers vote in a special referendum to choose between continued acreage controls and unrestricted freedom to plant as they please.

Congress and Agriculture Secretary Ezra Benson have been arguing the question for the past six months. Congress has said the growers prefer even more strict controls in return for higher price supports for their wheat.

Secretary Benson has been equally insistent that most farmers want greater freedom to plant and that they are willing to accept lower price supports in return for more freedom.

Congress passed a bill last month to reduce wheat acreage allotment by 20 per cent and increase price supports by about the same percentage. President Eisenhower, in vetoing the bill, said that wasn't what wheat growers want.

If wheat growers want unrestricted freedom to plant their 1960 crop, the law says they must also accept a drop in price supports from about $3.00 a bushel to something near $1.29 a bushel next year.

All wheat growers with an allotment of 15 acres or more, of which there are about half a million, are eligible to vote in the referendum. The law provides that unless two-thirds of those voting mark their ballot in favor of continued acreage allotments and marketing quotas, controls will be discontinued and price supports lowered by 60 cents a bushel next year.

There are approximately one million "small" wheat growers who plant 15 acres or less, but cannot vote in the referendum. Mr. Benson asked that they also be permitted to vote, but Congress refused to change the law that bars them from voting.

The big growers who can vote never have voted down quotas and allotments. The percentage favoring controls usually has run from 50 per cent to 90 per cent of those voting. Most observers here think farmers will continue to vote for controls.

In a somewhat similar situation, however, corn growers voted overwhelmingly last fall to abandon acreage allotments and accept lower price supports. Will wheat growers follow suit?

Mr. Benson hailed the corn vote as "a blow for freedom" from government farm controls. He said it demonstrated that most farmers "want to set the government out of agriculture."

Since then a number of farm magazine polls all have shown that a majority of those replying to questionnaires want complete freedom to plant as they please and take their chances on prices in the open market.

By the end of this week up to half a million wheat growers will have given their answer when it really counts. Most of them would like freedom to plant all the wheat they want to, but the question is, are they willing to accept the lower prices that would go along with unlimited production of a crop already a burden on the market?

James A. Stutts Named Head Of Brewers Foundation

James A. Stutts, of New Bern, has been appointed Director of the North Carolina Division of the United States Brewers Foundation, Inc.

This was announced by Edward V. Lahey, chairman of the board and president of the foundation. Stutts who succeeds the late Ray Galloway, who assume his new position on August 1.

The Brewers Foundation, founded in 1862, is the oldest incorporated trade association in the country. The North Carolina Division, with headquarters in Raleigh, was opened in 1935. This is one of thirty-one states in which the Foundation functions.

In his capacity as director, Stutts will work closely with brewers, malt beverage wholesalers and retailers in carrying out an educational program in behalf of the brewing industry aimed at maintaining wholesome conditions surrounding the legal sale of beer and ale. In furtherance of this program he will also maintain contacts with law enforcement authorities, public officials, the press and the general public.

COLLEGE HINTS

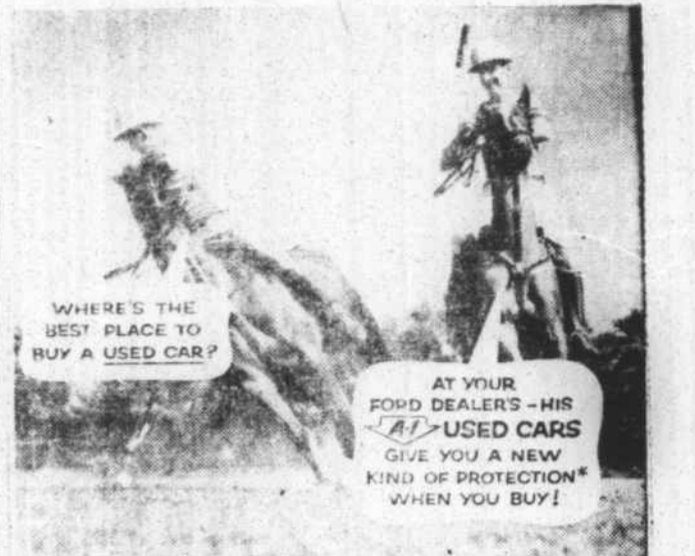

By RUTH CURRENT SUMMERTIME DRINKS—For those who are counting calories, these recipes may be made with non-caloric sweetener:

- Orange and Lemon Juice Punch: 2 cups orange juice, 6 cups fresh orange juice, 1 cup fresh lemon juice, 4 cups ginger ale

1/2 cup maraschino cherry juice, 1/2 cup sugar, 1 fresh lemon, sliced, 1 fresh orange, sliced. Combine ingredients and pour over cracked or ice block. You may add a quart of lemon or orange sherbet to punch bowl just before serving.

COFFEE SHERBET—The recipe comes from Italy. It's made quickly and easily in refrigerator tray. Use 2 measuring cups of strong hot coffee, 1/2 cup granulated sugar, 2 teaspoons vanilla, whipped cream (optional). Dissolve sugar in hot coffee. (Use more or less sugar, to taste). Cool. Pour mixture into refrigerator tray. Freeze until almost hard. Beat well, return to tray and freeze to sherbet consistency. Serve in sherbet glasses, top with whipped cream, if desired. Serves 4.

COOLIDGE SPEAKS By A. B. HAMPTON Advertising is the life of trade. Our doctrine of equality, liberty and humanity comes from our belief in the brotherhood of man through the fatherhood of God. Governments are necessarily continuing concerns. They have to keep going in good times and in bad. They therefore need a wide margin of safety. If taxes and debt are made all the people can bear when times are good, there will be certain disaster when times are bad. Our government is a government by political parties under the guiding influence of public opinion. There does not seem to be any other method by which a republic can function.
