Large Pitcher Collection Displayed By Miss Palmer

Little pitchers have big ears, as one smaller than a thimble. She started the collection with a small black wooden pitcher that was given to her by a friend.

The collection has grown through the years by gifts from friends who brought pitchers back to Miss Palmer from their travels.

"I have them from all over the United States. And I have one from Canada."

The case that the pitchers are displayed in seems to hardly have room for another, but Miss Palmer says she is always in the market for new and different pitchers.

WATER SKIING

Water skiing is becoming more popular each year.

Like most any other sport, it can be hazardous unless safety precautions are exercised. Three accidents on TVA lakes last year indicates this.

A man operating a 14-foot plywood boat with a 25 horsepower motor, was pulling another man on skis. The boat operator was thrown from the boat when he diverted his attention backward and the boat suddenly swerved. The boat continued to "run away" at full throttle and struck the lock wall and dam. Both men were rescued by nearby boaters, but the boat was completely demolished and the motor was lost in the lake.

In another accident, a man was skiing without a life jacket and he couldn't swim. He fell and sank before the boat could get back to pick him up. The boat operator dived for him unsuccessfully. The body was recovered in about three hours.

In a third case, a girl was skiing behind a boat operated by her father. The father was watching her and failed to see a boat coming at right angles toward the path of the skier. The woman operating the boat stopped her craft, but her motor swung around and cut a severe gash in the girl's leg.

Of a number of safe skiing practices, three important ones are:

- 1. Wear an approved life jacket.
2. Always have two persons in the boat.
3. Never ski within 100 feet of a dock or other boats.
