Membership Drive To Be Continued This Week

The North Carolina Symphony Society's annual drive for members in Cherokee, Clay and Graham counties is in its second week according to Mrs. R. T. Houts Jr., local president.

Mr. and Mrs. Holland McSwain are membership co-chairmen.

The North Carolina Symphony plans a concert in Murphy next spring. An evening concert will be open to all members of the North Carolina Symphony Society and a free matinee will be played for local school children. The purchase of a membership in the symphony Society also entitles the holder to attend any of the 40 other evening membership concerts which the Symphony will play throughout the states.

Memberships purchased help drive the buses which bring free music to more than 100,000 Tar Heel children annually.

The following memberships are available: $1 for students; $3 for a single membership; and $5 for a couple.

Benjamin Swalin is the director. The Symphony presents outstanding soloists, both instrumentalists and vocalists.

The week of Dec. 7-12 has been proclaimed by Mayor L. L. Mason as North Carolina Symphony Week. In the proclamation the Mayor said that whereas the effects of good music, like those of good government, uplift the standards of democratic life in the community and state and whereas the non-profit, educational North Carolina Symphony Society has presented good music for 40,000 of our adult citizens and free to 110,000 school children throughout this state during the past season and whereas free children's concerts, opportunities for young North Carolina musicians, and special hospital and institutional appearances are contingent upon adequate financial resources and whereas the opportunity of membership in the North Carolina Symphony is now available: It is desired that local citizens in this area do enroll in this worthy cause.

Making Christmas Decorations Can Be Fun, Easy

Store counters are piled high with attractive Christmas decorations, but as Santa goes along nipping into the Yule budget, we may prefer to cut costs and make our own holiday decorations.

A novel centerpiece for a children's party for instance is a Santa Claus pie containing small gift items. Then there are a number of place mat styles that can be whipped up in jiffy time with foil paper. Small table favors made with a candy base score high with the small fry.

To make this, use an ordinary large size pie plate, making sure it is large enough to hold the gifts. Stretch beige crepe paper around the pan, allowing enough of an overlap to paste beyond the top and bottom edges. Put gifts in the tin. These should be wrapped with paper and tied with bright ribbon long enough to reach each plate. Two circles of beige crepe paper 2 inches longer than the top of the tin are pasted together and placed over the gifts to form top crust. Slit the crust in various spots so ribbons can be drawn through.

Santa is merely a styrofoam ball and a piece of wire about 14 inches long, around which you've wound red crepe paper. The wire is wound around a pencil several times to get a curled effect. It is then inserted in the ball and fastened through the center of the piecrust to the bottom of the pan. Brush the top of the "crust" with brown crepe paper dipped in water to get a realistic look. Fringed white crepe paper makes Santa's beard, hat and sleeve trim. His nose, mouth and arms are made out of tied wool stock. Blue seals serve as eyes and his fringed and tasseled hat is made from red crepe paper.

Cover a package of round mints with mar stock, decorate it spiral fashion with a strip of crepe paper. Place a package of chewing gum that has been wrapped in foil underneath for a base. Wrap a second package of gum and fasten it to one end of the train. Paste three peppermint candies on each side to form the train's wheels. A conical shaped piece of paper makes the smoke stack and a bent pip cleaner with a bell attached completes the train.
