An insect has no lungs. Instead, the blood is supplied with oxygen by means of spiracles, or small openings along the side of the body, which lead into branching tubes that carry the air to the blood stream.

GARDEN TIME

By M. E. GARDNER

Before taking up your pruning shears this winter, it might be a good idea to first ask yourself: "Why am I pruning these plants?" If you can satisfactorily answer this question, it may mean the difference between doing a good job, a sloppy job or a good job of butchering.

Wide pruning improves the general appearance and neatness of a home landscape by: maintaining, as nearly as possible, the natural growth habits of the plants; correcting damage caused by accidental injury or ice breakage; confining plants to a desired space, if necessary; stimulating the growth of flowers, fruits and foliage; and chaping plants to some desired pattern. Remember that every plant has character represented by growth habits and leaf, stem, bark or fruit color.

An understanding of the fruit or flower bearing habits of the plant is essential before one can prune intelligently. The spring blooming woody plants produce their flowers from buds already formed on wood produced in 1959 and remaining dormant over winter. This is true of lilac, forsythia, wisteria, weigelia and deutzia. The proper time to prune these plants is just after they bloom because early spring or late fall pruning would remove the bloom buds.

The summer blooming plants, hybrid perpetual roses, crepe myrtle, etc., will produce their flowers on shoots produced early in 1960 and frequently referred to as the current season's growth. Such plants require pruning in winter or early spring in order to produce strong new shoot growth.

Now is a good time to prune your fruit trees and grapevines. Apples are borne on spurs produced on wood usually two years old or older. Peaches are borne on wood one year old and grapes on new growth which is produced on canes one year old. If you have some old neglected peach and apple trees, give them a good pruning this winter, spray them with winter-strength lime sulphur and fertilize with 8-8-8 fertilizer in the early spring. You may be agreeably surprised.

IN MEMORIAM
Now all your days of lingering pain Your weary nights have passed, Your ever-patient worn-out frame Has found eternal rest at last.

Precious memories still linger on As I journey on life's way, For we'll have a glad reunion When we meet some joyful day.

I'll be prepared to meet you Death could not end our love, Some glad morning we will meet In a better land above.

I know God is watching over you, You're spared from any other, That's why he picked you for himself

And said "Well Done On Earth, Dear Father."
