Dusty Road Leads To Hot Springs

By PHYLLIS BABB

A cloud of dust and a hearty 'Hi "That's just how it was one oay last Summer when we were to Japan. It was noon-day and the sun was shinning above, and yet we could not see two feet in front of us The dust enveloped us. With all of the windows rolled up in the car, we still ate so much dust that no one really cared for any lunch.

We were on our way to Atam! one of Japan's more famous hot spring resorts

Now when you get to this little town," said the kindly missionary, as she pointed to the map, "you turn to the left. The road is not in such good condition, but the scenery 1 lovely

Could be, but you can't prove by us. However, I did see enough to find the trip a hair raising one We were traveling along a riviera The Pacific Ocean crashed upon the the rocks far below us while we twined around a little mountain trail (about the size of a fair sized drave way.) That in itself was enough to add a few gray hairs but when you add a fog of dust w dense that you can't see well. I feel a good 10 years older Atami is located on a Japanese Riviera and is particularly popular for bathers, both in the numerous hot spring pools and in the sea. It is perhaps more noted for its hot springs. Five and a quarter million gallons of water gush out daily from hot springs in Japan.

Atami is to Japan what Magara Falls is to America. A honeymoon goal, par excellence. It is also a u shake off work and worry.

There is little to see at Atami except for the interesting panorama of an ocean pursuing the base of an entire mountain range. For us east coast dwellers, this is an unusual eight indeed.

There is one curiosity in Atami. namely a spring called Oyu, meaning "The Great Hot Water." The temperature of this spring is a constant 226.4 degrees Fahrenheit It is known to be the hottest spring in all Japan. It was a geyser, regularly spouting, until 1923 when the great earthquake of that year reduced the majestic geyser to a hubbling spring.

After leaving Atams we entered some perfectly beautiful mountains and headed for the city of Hakone To reach this mountain city, we had a trip through Hakone National Park where the scenery is for to beautiful for words. As far as the eve can see there are giganic evergreen trees. This park appears to be untouched by man except for a refreshment stand or two. The town of Hakone is quiet and picturesque. It is also a shoppers paradise. We saw things in the many little shops that we have seen nowhere else in Japan.

In Hakone is also one of the most famous resort hotels in Japan, the Fujiva. This hotel has all of the beauty of Japanese architecture but is run in completely western style. In one of the hot bath pools, you are even required to wear a bathing suit This in itself is a unique fea-
