Tomato Aspic Makes Good Luncheon Dish

Let the luncheon guests arrive, you'll be ready for them with this party - pretty aspic combining tomato sauce, cottage cheese and tuna, topped with a cheese and cream dressing.

Ingredients for the aspic are 3 envelopes unflavored gelatin; 3 cups cold water; ¼ teaspoon ground marjoram; 2 (8-ounce) cans of tomato sauce; 1 table-spoon vinegar; 1 teaspoon sugar;

1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce; 1 teaspoon salt; 2 cups cottage cheese (small curd); 1 (7-ounce) can flake tuna, and salad greens and garnishes.

Sprinkle gelatine over 1½ cups cold water in a saucepan. Stir to soften. Place on surface until set at low, and stir till gelatin is dissolved. (Do not boil.) Remove from hot, and add marjoram to hot mixture. Stir in remaining water, tomato sauce, vinegar, sugar, Worcestershire, and salt. Cool slightly.

For first layer of mold, pour ½ cup of tomato mixture in bottom of an oiled 2 - quart mold. Place in refrigerator until set.

For second layer, fold cottage cheese into 1½ cups of tomato mixture, and pour on top of first layer. Place in refrigerator until set fairly firm.

Mix remaining tomato mixture (2 cups) with tuna and pour in mold for third layer. Refrigerate until set.

To serve, loosen the gelatin along edges and unmold by inverting on serving plate. Garnish and serve with cheese and cream dressing. (This salad may be made a day ahead of time and Yield, six servings.)

For the dressing, ingredients are 1 cup (8 ounces) sour cream; ¼ teaspoon salt; ¼ teaspoon dry mustard; ¼ teaspoon onion salt; dash garlic salt; ¼ cup Roquefort cheese (about 2 ounces).

Place all ingredients except Roquefort cheese in a blender or blend together with rotary beater at a medium speed for about 15 seconds. Add cheese and blend for 30 seconds. Refrigerate before serving with aspic. (This dressing may be made a day ahead of time.) Yield, 1½ cups.

Onions Unusual Main Vegetable

Wise cooks not only use onions to flavor other foods, or in combination dishes, but frequently serve them in a variety of ways as a "main" vegetable at meal-time.

Steamed whole onions, for example, have an inviting flavor all of their own, especially when served with an herb butter topping, or a sharp cheddar cheese sauce. Stuffed onions, baked until tipped with brown, make a delightful dish. Simply steam peeled onions until tender, remove the "centers" and fill with a bread crumb stuffing. Scatter grated cheese over the tops and bake in moderate oven until thoroughly heated.

The U. S. Department of Agriculture says dry onions are plentiful, and for an unusual dish suggests trying creamed onions with peanuts. Steam thick onion slices, or peeled small onions, in salted water until tender. Drain off the water, and place the onion slices or small onions in a buttered casserole dish and cover with a white sauce filled with chopped peanuts. Scatter a combination of chopped peanuts and buttered bread crumbs over the top and bake in moderate oven about 20 minutes.

Curried onions can be prepared by simmering thick onion slices in salted water until tender. Drain off water. Stir undiluted evaporated milk or thick cream into steamed white rice, add some butter or margarine, and season to taste with curry powder, salt and a bit of mace. Combine the rice mixture with the onion slices and bake in moderate oven until thoroughly heated.

"How could that catty remark bother me so?"

When your mind's upset, your car may be too! Your thoughts can't be in two places at once. At the wheel, there's only one safe place for them — on your driving. 37,000 Americans died on our highways last year; 37 times that many were injured. The tragic toll might have been far less if every driver remembered this: a thinking driver is a safe driver . . . when his thoughts are concentrated on driving!

Where traffic laws are obeyed and enforced, deaths go DOWN!
