God Was Good To Her During Full, Active Life

Editor's note: The following article was written by Mrs. Morie Knapp, daughter of the late Mrs. Mae Taylor. Mrs. Taylor was the daughter of Daniel Webster and Sara Jane McKee Whisenbunt, who were among Andrew's first settlers.

By MRS. MORIE KNAPP
Many of you will undoubtedly remember when grandfather Daniel Webster Whisenbunt first came to Andrews around 1890. He was born in Marion, N. C. and married Sara Jane McKee from Swannona in 1890.

Grandfather was one of the town's first merchants and was a stockholder and director in the Merchants and Manufacturers Bank from the time it was organized until his death. Grandfather had six children of which Mama was the youngest.

Grandmother went blind when Mama was ten years old and Mama not only took care of her but helped Grandfather in the store as well as attend school.

Mama was married to Sam J. Taylor in 1913 and bore eight children, seven of which are living now. Daddy died in 1933 leaving Mama with eight children not only to raise but be mother and father to us all, the youngest child being 11 months old at the time.

I'll mention Jim first for he gave his life serving in the U.S. Navy. Jim was in the battle of the Coral Sea in 1942 and died in action in May of that year. Mama received his purple heart. The other children are now scattered over the U.S.A. and Mama thoroughly enjoyed traveling around to visit with each of us as often as possible.

Woodrow is now living in New Mexico, Louise in Arkansas, Sara in Andrews, N. C., Marie in New Jersey, Ruth in Arizona, Dan in Arizona and Jean in Andrews.

Rep. Lillian Cover may be a tiny little lady but she doesn't necessarily have a tiny little voice. One might think that such a diminutive woman could not be heard as she represents Cherokee County in a world predominately made up of men. But once again Mrs. Cover made some folks in Raleigh listen to what she had to say. Mrs. Cover wanted a bridge across Totham Creek and the State Highway Commission headed her plea and built one. The Highway Commission awarded $1,000 to erect a footbridge which Mrs. Cover said was badly needed for school children. The bridge was recently completed.

Poultrymen Should Strive For Quality

Heat is the greatest single enemy of egg quality.

"If eggs are not collected often, cooled quickly, and kept under refrigeration, the quality can go down hill very fast," says Thomas B. Morris, N. C. State extension poultry specialist.

In one test in North Carolina where the eggs were not kept under refrigeration, none of the eggs made the top grade—AA quality—at the end of one week. Eggs that were kept under refrigeration for one week made 50 per cent AA grade and 50 per cent A grade.

"This is proof that farm handling practices can affect quality," says Morris. "If producers desire to sell top quality (grade AA) eggs, they should collect eggs around four to five times each day during warm weather, keep the eggs in a cooler at 60 degrees F., and sell the eggs at least twice each week."

Beerkens Testifies At Railroad Hearing

Arnold Beerkens, president of Timber Products Corp. of Murphy, was a member of a group of five North Carolina firms that either export or import goods through the ports of Morehead City and Wilmington that testified in favor of equal rail rates for the two ports.

The Southern Railway opened up with its big guns last week in its fight for equal rail rates for import - export goods for the ports of Morehead City and Wilmington.

Southern is the defendant in a complaint action against the equalized rates, brought to the Interstate Commerce Commission by the Atlantic Coast Line Railway.

The ACL has contended that import - export rates for Morehead City should be based on freight traffic manager's formula. Use of the formula in the past has resulted in higher rates for the Carteret County town than for Wilmington.

Others testifying in favor of equal rates were: S. V. Davenport of Charlotte, vice president of the Pat Brown Lumber Co. of High Point; C. H. Leary of Elkin, Traffic manager of Chatham Manufacturing Co.; and Albert H. Lathrop of Enka, general traffic manager of American Enka Corp.

Max Payne Wins Fishing Contest

Max Payne of Murphy won first place in the Phillips 66 fishing contest this past week with a fine small mouth bass that weighed in at 3 lb. 10 oz. This makes twice in as many weeks that Max has taken home the prize, a tank of gas and motor oil for his outboard from Claude Jones' 66 Station on U.S. Highway 64.

Preacher Morris brought in a mighty fine pike that weighed in at 2 lbs. 15 oz. and measured 22 inches.

Sorry we don't have pictures of these two. The Scout will print all pictures of fish caught in this area.
