Mostly About You

By HEINZ ROLLMAN

What Makes Rollman Run . . . ?

A man can only do so much in life, and outside of my family, my workers, and my business, I have never been interested in anything except good government and peace on earth. Maybe my education is lacking because I have never had a golf club in my hand, or because I have never played cards. But nevertheless, I spend my spare time doing things that are just as close to my heart.

Some of my friends have gone to the trouble to figure out that it will take me quite a little while in Congress to earn back the amounts of money that I spend campaigning. (WORLD-FAMOUS RALPH MCGILL HAD THIS TO SAY THE OTHER DAY ABOUT THE COST OF CAMPAIGNS):

"There is hardly an office within the gift of the people today, including the most humble, which does not cost more to win than it pays for the first year in it. If men do not have it they must find it. And underworld sources, as well as special interests, are always willing to buy a candidate."

Well, I don't want to be financed by the underworld and I don't want to be owned by any special interests. Some of my friends think that I must be off the rocker spending my own hard-earned money to campaign and I tell them this:

"Look here, fellows, you work yourself to death to put some money in the bank, you play the stock market, and it keeps you excited all the time. You speculate in land, and you have stomach ulcers. I don't have ulcers. Money, for its own sake, or for reasons of security, has never fascinated me. I have saved a little money over the years and I haven't invested it in the stock market or played the horses. I don't ever need any outside excitement. Being in a political campaign is all the excitement I need. Can't you fellows get it through your heads that I don't have to die leaving a lot of money in a bank account or in a vault? I have life insurance for my family, if anything ever happens to me, and I know that my associates would take care of my family the way I would take care of their families."

I'd rather devote my savings to do my share, small as it may be, for better government, more democracy, and the hope for lasting peace. I know a number of shoemakers who keep a hundred thousand dollar yacht in Miami and who have winter homes in Bermuda. No one thinks they are crazy. I have a little outboard motorboat same as many of our workers and a little cabin on the beach. I know of people who buy $20 worth of liquor every week. That's a thousand dollars a year, the neat total of $20,000 in 20 years if they live that long. Yet I have never seen an ABC store where the advertisement outside states, "If you come in here to spend your money you're crazy." Why, then, is it crazy to want to spend one's savings for better government and peace on earth? What gives me peace of mind is to use my energy, my health, and my ideas for the betterment of mankind. If this is crazy, quite a few people throughout history have been just as nutty as I am!

Lately I have also been kidded for having advertised for an assistant if elected. People think sometimes I do things too soon. But the people who kid me don't seem to realize what an important job an assistant to a congressman can do if he is the right fellow, honest and dedicated and really knows the congressional district from one end to the other and especially the needs of the people, the industries, the road system, the farming, the tourist business and other things. Wasting good taxpayer's money on a half payed assistant is cheating the public since the public pays the salaries of the people who work in a congressman's office. He, the congressman himself, doesn't spend a nickel. Anyone on the staff of a congressman has to please not only the congressman but above anything else the people. These employees must be highly capable and absolutely honest. No one on my staff would be allowed to keep a gift regardless of what reason the gift was given. I have seen in Washington too many gifts change hands for other than reasons of friendship. I don't mind anyone on my staff being invited for a meal thing as a little bribery, either there is no bribery, not even a cup of coffee, or one might as well open the flood gates.

Politics has gotten a bad name in our land and a lot of people look for a reason when someone tries to be elected for the money that's in it for him. Too many people think "there must be something fishy. Why otherwise, they reason, "would a fellow expose himself to the bitterness, expense, abuse, and even the danger of running for Congress—especially when he is trying to do it against a powerful and vicious political machine."

Well, may I point out two very prominent people in our country who did not need the money. Franklin Roosevelt's family were millionaires. He was physically handicapped; he ran four times for the presidency. General Eisenhower, before becoming president, had just sold the rights to his book, "CRUSADE IN EUROPE," for a million dollars; had worked all his life, and besides this salary has never helped any president financially since it is eaten up for entertainment and other things while in office.

People might not remember that Herbert Hoover never accepted a salary while he was president, but he turned the money back to the Treasury Department. There are thousands of people in our country, whom you may not know personally, who have sought public office for one reason alone: "Just being alive in 'God's own country' gives a man an obligation, to help keep this country what it is. This can best be done by elected people who are not owned by a clique, a group or by a machine, and this can be done best by people who do not want to line their pockets or give employment to as many relatives as they can, irrespective of their qualifications."

I DON'T HAVE TO SELL ANYTHING TO THE GOVERNMENT. I don't buy anything from the government. Any relative of mine who would work in my office in Washington would have to do so without payment.

I have also been asked by friends, "Rollman, doesn't it kill you to lose a campaign?" Well, I lost one in 1958 and I gained five pounds for the first time in over twenty years. After the defeat I was just as happy and just as healthy as I have been all my life. If I win this coming time I will be overjoyed to be given a chance. But if I lose I won't lose one hour's sleep, nor will I be unhappy for one minute. In fact, since I have figured out exactly what I am going to do if elected to Congress, I have also figured out exactly what I am going to do if not elected to Congress. While I will publish everything between now and November 8, that I will do if elected, I will, however, not publish what I will do after November if not elected, except to say I am going to have a whale of a good time, win or lose. Buchanan Portrait Unveiling At W.C.T.C. Sunday

ANDREWS—A portrait of Mrs. Lillian Barker Buchanan will be unveiled Sunday at 3:00 p.m. at W.C.T.C.

Before the unveiling Mrs. Giles Cover will read the citation. Dr. Paul Reid, president of the college, will accept the portrait for the college. Col. John Buchanan, Mrs. Buchanan's son, and his wife will unveil the portrait which was Painted by an artist from Charlotte.

Mrs. Buchanan is formerly of Andrews and has made a record as a librarian. She supervised the building of the library, which is noted throughout the country.

Mrs. Buchanan has been a librarian for 30 years and now heads the department. She is the first woman to have been so honored at the college.

"Butch" Sursavage, Andrews eight grade student, has a perfect school attendance record. Butch also has a perfect Sunday School attendance record.

Clyde Amos Selected To Cattle Club

PETERBOROUGH, N. H. — Clyde Amos, Jr., Andrews, North Carolina has been accepted for Junior Membership in The American Guernsey Cattle Club.

By qualifying as a Junior Member of the AGCC, Clyde will receive a membership certificate and have the privilege of registering his Guernsey at the low member rate. This junior membership will be in effect until the new member reaches 21 years of age. Nearly 900 young people from all over the United States have been accepted for junior membership in the American Guernsey Cattle Club since this program started in June.

Requirements for junior membership in the AGCC are simple. Young people must be individual owners of one or more purebred Guernseys, and at least one of the animals must be registered or become registered at the time the youngster's application for membership is processed. Applications for membership must be endorsed by a State 4-H Club Leader, County 4-H Club Agent, County Agricultural agent, Vocational Agricultural Supervisor or an adult members of the AGCC.

Full details on the new Junior Membership Program may be obtained from The American Guernsey Cattle Club, Peterborough, New Hampshire.
