Andrews Lady Excels As Homemaker, Civic Worker

By LUCY LAUGHTER
ANDREWS — Mrs. E. U. Burch little realized when she was growing up on a 50,000 acre farm that one day she would be rendering a valuable community service in the little mountain town of Andrews.

In 1950 she married Eldson Burch, a pharmacist student from her native county and while Eldson completed his studies Mrs. Burch taught school and became a Red Cross safety instructor.

After Mr. Burch received his degree in pharmacy he worked in Blue Ridge, Ga. and Knoxville, Tenn. before accepting a position with Davis Drug Company in Andrews.

Although the Burch's had picked up five children along the way, the care of the children did not take up the energy and desire for civic work that prevailed the spirit of this young mother.

So she resumed teaching Sunday School, became President of Home Demonstration club, 1960 General chairman of 4th July celebration, 1960 chairman of East

Cherokee County Heart Fund, made a habit of reading a good book every week and taught herself to play a Hammond Chord organ.

There are so few mothers that can cope with five children and still have time to cook for their husbands. We are of the opinion that a woman who can do all that and take-on a load of civic work on the side, deserves public mention.

We would wish for more of that kind of courage and endurance that can cause one woman to take on the work of two women in serving her family and her community.
