GAZE INTO THE CRYSTAL BALL

Between now and November 8 the big and powerful political machine in the 12th Congressional District will tell many misleading stories and start many false rumors about Heinz Ollman.

Gaze for a moment into the political crystal ball and see some of the things the political machine has up its sleeve to attack Ollman:

- 1) An advertisement will run saying Ollman is not a real Republican, that he is not a real Democrat, that, therefore, he is unsuited to represent this district in Congress. Some members of the political ring are already speeding the rumor that Ollman will run on the communist ticket in 1962 if he does not win now. The viciousness and stupidity of some people knows no limit. Not only is Ollman one of the greatest fighters in the country against communism, he is also going to run on the Republican ticket whenever he runs for public office in the future. And, last but not least, he is GOING TO WIN THIS NOVEMBER.
- 2) What have we here? Hah, another advertisement filled with lies and distortion, taking some of the millions of words Ollman has written out of context, making it appear that he is against wedded motherhood, Eisenhower, farmers, workers, Nixon, education, children, Lodge, food, shelter, old people and democracy.
- 3) What's this! Another ad saying Ollman is in favor of free love, communism, fascism, nazism, buddism, hinduism, and all the other 'isms.
- 4) Here's a rumor— Ollman's campaign is being financed by Moscow, or by Berlin, or by Tel-Aviv, or by Buenos Aires, or by Red China, or maybe by the abominable snowman.
- 5) How about an ad saying that Ollman's campaign is being financed by organized labor?
- 6) And an ad that says Ollman has spent vast amounts of money to win the election and, therefore, he must be a phony because no honest man would spend more in a campaign than the job would pay in a year.
- 7) Of course, an anti-Ollman campaign wouldn't be complete without calling him an ultra-liberal or an ultra-conservative, or an ultra-something. Can you think of a better way to confuse the issues?
- 8) Rumor: No more welfare payments if Heinz Ollman is elected. (Isn't that silly? But, in 1958, the people in one county were told this to scare them out of voting for Ollman.)
- 9) They will reprint, in condensed forms, advertisements Ollman ran two years ago, hoping to confuse the issues even more.
- 10) Also, the political machine could put a couple of write-in candidates into the race just to split the vote as much as possible.
- 11) Here are probably the two best ones which are making the rounds already. Ollman wants to get into Congress to get government contracts for his shoe factories. That'll be the day when the U. S. Army goes into combat wearing Ollman's slippers and casual shoes. And don't forget that you will hear that Ollman wants to get into Congress to get military secrets to pass them on to his Russian-born wife who left Russia at the tender age of 7 together with her parents penniless in 1918.
- 12) Finally, there will be a big stink that Ollman is a friend of labor—and by golly, Ollman hates it! He and labor have always been friends and his factories are noted for the harmonious relationships between management and labor. By the same token, Heinz Ollman is a friend of the farmer, the businessman, and the industrialist. Why shouldn't a man be friendly with everyone in his district, regardless of what line of work they're in, as long as they are not underworld characters, dope peddlers, or ringleaders of a political machine?
