Setting Type On Linotype

Paper Goes To Press

Headlines Are Set On Ludlow

Members of the staff of the Wildcat's, Andrews High School's monthly newspaper, visited The Cherokee Scout, Thursday, February 23. The group made the field trip to Murphy to view first hand the actual operation of producing a newspaper.

The staff with their faculty advisor, Miss Elizabeth Whitson, arrived at The Scout office just as the last hundred copies of the current edition of the Scream was coming off the press. Copies of the paper were distributed and each operation from start to finish was explained.

As the group made their way through the plant, pictures were posed with members of the Scream's staff filling in the various jobs that go to make the finished product, a newspaper.
