You and Your Insurance
By C. E. Hyde
A public service column about property and casualty insurance not recovered you wouldn't expect the insurance company to replace it with a 1961 model. If that were done, obviously some persons would be encouraged to "arrange" auto thefts.

The reasoning with respect to the roof loss is similar. Assume, for example, that the normal life expectancy of a roof shingles is 20 years. This would mean an annual depreciation of five per cent. Thus, if the shingles were destroyed by an insured peril after a period of five years, the insurance company would pay the cost of replacing them less 25 per cent. If 100 per cent were paid, it would become profitable for policyholders to suffer losses. They would, in effect be getting new for old.

It should be pointed out, however, that the new homeowners' policies, which combine several forms of insurance into one policy, include what is called a replacement cost provision, under which your home would be replaced exactly as it was before the loss. This will be discussed more completely in a later column.

Remember, this column is about you and your insurance. Feel free to submit any questions you may have.

IN FLORISSING FIELDS
By Charles and Helen
In florissing fields
Between the crosses, some roses
That mark our place, and in the sky
The birds still bravely sing
Secure hand under the green boughs

We are the best
Short days ago we used to have our normal glow
Loved and were loved, and now we lie
In Florissing fields

Take up our graves with the flowers
To give remembrance to those we miss
The Tombstones will be sold by high
If you would like to see them do
We shall be glad to show them to you
In Florissing fields

In loving memory of our dead, and in honor of our living veterans of all wars.
