Amen, Brother

The light at the end, of the tunnel may finally be appearing, after so many years of commercial TV inundation and degradation. The nation's largest television advertiser recently announced it was withdrawing sponsorship from over fifty television shows because of its concern with content -- primarily too much violence, sex and degeneracy. O.B. Butler, chairman of the board of Procter and Gamble, said his firm would no longer allow its name to be associated with TV shows which many of its-customers seriously object to. One hopes Butler is but the first of a long list of major advertisers who withdraw from commercial TV, until it is cleaned up.

Viewers who have so long been concerned over the ow intellectual and moral quality of shows on the three commercial networks should make it a point to seek out Procter and Gamble products in their supermarkets. They should back a major corporation which is making an effort to support their reform efforts. Procter and Gamble products include lvory soap, lide and Cheer detergents. Sure and Secret deolorants, Folgers coffee. Duncan Hines mixes, Charmin' toilet tissue and other household products.
