High Blood Pressure

And Your Survival

Facts Checked By Experts At Smith Kline And French Laboratories

What Do the Numbers Mean?

When the doctor takes your blood pressure, he gets two numbers. The high number is called the systolic (sis-tah-lick) reading. This measures pressure in the blood vessels when the heart is pumping. The low figure is called the diastolic (di-uh-stah-lick) reading. It measures the pressure between pumps, when the heart is at rest.

Blood moving through the body causes pressure in the blood vessels. So, everybody has blood pressure. Blood pressure is different in different people. Your doctor can find out what is right for you.

AGRICULTURAL EXTENSION SERVICE

JOHN G. RICHARDSON

Robeson County Extension Chairman

Wednesday, June 2, is the date that this year's edition of the Robeson County Farmers Market will get underway. The recent cool weather has prevented much of the produce from growing as rapidly as we had hoped, but there are some products that should be available by the 2nd. Items such as onions, cabbage, radishes, and other plants of this type should be in abundance for the market opening.

The Farmers Market this year will be held again at the shed located behind the Farm and Family Center in Lumberton. The market will be open every Wednesday and Saturday throughout the summer and fall. Opening times for both the Wednesday and Saturday markets will be the same this year. The market will officially open at 9 a.m. and close at 3 p.m. Naturally, our experience has shown that if produce is still available, many of the farmers will remain later than the scheduled closing time to finish selling their products.

Therefore, even though the official closing time will be 3 p.m. there is a strong likelihood that anyone who arrives or who drives by the market after 3 p.m. will probably still have an opportunity to purchase some of the available products, especially during the major growing season.

One of the major factors relating to the Farmers Market is our insistence that only locally grown products can be sold through the market. Under no circumstances will anyone who has purchased products from other areas and who plans to resell them through the market be allowed to follow this practice. Thus, even though some of the vendors may have their produce arranged nicely and very orderly, that will be no indication that those individuals are professional traders who are selling products from some other area. It was somewhat amusing last year when numerous individuals asked me if certain products had actually been grown locally when the reasons for the suspicion was only because those persons selling had done a little better job displaying their products than some of the vendors. Therefore, I would like to reiterate to everyone that the reason for the market's existence is for the purpose of providing additional marketing opportunities for our local growers and to provide these locally grown products to local citizens.

In addition to announcing the actual opening of the market, I am also pleased to report that an assistant manager of the market will be on hand each day for a few hours to make sure that proper procedures are followed by those persons selling and also to assist in providing market prices to patrons. Truett West from Lumberton has assumed this position and will be on hand June 2 for the market opening.

Publicity for the market will be handled very much the same as last year; whereby, the Extension Service notified the local newspapers and radio stations of the products that were expected at each market. Thus, since this procedure will again be followed, we are requesting that any individual who wishes to sell products through the Farmers Market be sure and call the Extension Office at 738-8111 on Monday to secure a space reservation for the Wednesday market. Also, anyone who plans to sell products at the Saturday market is requested to call the Extension Office on Thursday. By following these simple procedures, we then can notify the general public of the products that will actually be on hand on any given day.

One major change that will be noticed immediately by former participants in the Farmers Market will be the arrangement of cars or pickups that products are sold from. This year those persons selling products will back under the shed and a main central aisle through the middle of the building will be the location that purchases may be made. This should alleviate any problem with one space being more desirable than other spaces.

In terms of anticipated participation by growers:

the market this year we have received very favorable feedback from former participants and also expect numerous additional individuals to sell their produce through the market this year.

While I have mentioned produce as the predominant item for sale, the limitation associated with the market in addition to the requirement for locally grown products is that the products sold be raw farm products. Therefore, items such as eggs and honey naturally fit into the category of eligible products.

As I suggested in a prior column, "be sure to look for the Farmers Market;" it will be here June 2.
