Making your life easier are a lot of innovative devices that you may not know about. Here are a few of them:

· Making an outside call from your hotel room used to be complicated. Now, in many hotels, you just pick up and dial. That's because of an innovative system called Tel-Charge which allows calls to be billed automatically.

• There's also a way to help your business office control telephone expenses. It's a management data system called Call-Account.

· Both these ingenious systems were developed by the engineers at Conrac Corporation, a publicly owned company whose primary business is manufacturing products for telecommunications, video and computer-related information markets.

• That same high-technology company manufactures the computer-driven displays you see at many airports and railway stations around the world. The displays let u know when your plane, or train, is ar riving or departing.
