EXTENSION SCENE

JOHN G. RICHARDSON
Robeson County Extension Chairman

In Robeson County last year forest products accounted for $5,304,000 to the county's income. Of this total, $2,281,000 was from nonfarm production while slightly over $3 million originated from forestry plots on farms throughout the county. These figures placed forestry income as the fifth most significant producer of agricultural income surpassed only by tobacco, corn, soybeans and hogs.

A major push has been underway for the last few years regarding forestry improvement programs. The Forestry Service, ASCS, SCS, Agricultural Extension Service, and private forestry companies have all been actively engaged in promoting improved forestry practices. Some indication of success can be observed as one travels throughout the county and also the increased utilization of the forestry improvement program that is a part of the agricultural conservation program of ASCS.

While significant improvement is being made in general forestry practices, there is a specialty forestry item that is gaining ground in Robeson County and will probably be a significant income producer within a few years. Christmas tree production is something that has been a major boon to numerous mountain farmers, in the western part of North Carolina. But from work that has been done locally by Eddie Locklear, our forestry agent, and others who are interested in the development of a Christmas tree industry locally, it has been proven that an excellent opportunity exists here for optimum Christmas tree production. There is already well over 50 acres of Christmas trees growing in Robeson County.

Since it has been learned that especially Virginia pines grow quite well on many of our local soils, an increasing number of individuals are showing increased interest in this potential new forestry crop. Naturally, a ready market exists for Christmas trees, and it appears that a market could be expanded with little difficulty for locally grown trees.

While most of our informational bulletins are free, a most informative pamphlet that we have available entitled Growing Christmas Trees in North Carolina does carry a charge of $1.50. Yet, anyone who has even a token interest in Christmas tree production is advised to obtain a copy of this extremely informative booklet that provides a vast amount of information for Christmas tree culture and marketing. We have a limited supply of these bulletins available at the Extension Office. Anyone desiring a copy is encouraged to stop by the O.P. Owens Agriculture Building to make their purchase.

Dr. John Rimberg speaks at Pembroke Kiwanis meeting

Dr. John Rimberg, Sociology Professor at Pembroke State University, spoke briefly about a book he is presently writing concerning movies in Russia and how politics and entertainment come together in the Russian movie business. The book is scheduled for publication in five weeks. This will be the third book which he has written on the subject of movies in Russia. A recent immigrant from Russia, a friend of Dr. Rimberg, is visiting this area this summer and providing much helpful information.

Pembroke Kiwanis is helping to sell tickets for the Pembroke Rescue Squad fund raising dinner to be held August 2nd at Sheff's Sea Food Restaurant in Pembroke. Charlie Revels, representing the Rescue Squad, spoke briefly of the outstanding service the squad renders to Pembroke and the surrounding area and of their financial needs to continue this service.

Guest at the meeting was Roderick Locklear, brother of Kiwanian Garth Locklear.

Donald W. Bullard named to Commission of Indian Affairs

Lieutenant Governor Jimmy Green today announced the appointment of Donald W. Bullard of Pembroke to membership on the Commission of Indian Affairs. His term expires June 30, 1983.

Bullard is an attorney in private practice engaged in the general practice of law in Pembroke. He is originally from Sanford but moved to Pembroke to teach school after graduating from Methodist College in Fayetteville in 1968. After teaching at Pembroke Junior High School for three years, Bullard went to the University of Florida Law School where he received his degree in 1974.

Bullard is a Lumbee Indian and is married to the former Linda Lowry of Laurinburg. They have four children. He is active in the Robeson County Democratic Party, and with the Pembroke Jaycees. He is a member of the Prospect Methodist Church.

The Commission of Indian Affairs was established in 1971 to represent the needs of North Carolina's 50,000 Indians. The Commission works to interact with State, local and federal government agencies to see that those needs are met.

When buying collision insurance on your car, it's usually more economical to take a high deductible if you are unlikely to be involved in many accidents. According to the Reader's Digest Complete Car Care Manual, collision insurance is usually not worthwhile if the car is worth less than $1,000.

The manual, which includes hundreds of tips on buying and selling cars, repair and maintenance and other related subjects that can help you derive more satisfaction from your car, advises: "After you have decided what coverage you need, compare the rates of several companies. Premiums for the same coverage can vary a great deal among different companies."

Surveys by insurance companies show that, in general, males under 25 have more accidents and worse driving records than any other group. On the other hand, females and married drivers have proven to be good insurance risks. Available at your bookstore.

America saw its first popular newspaper when the "Penny Press" made its appearance in the 1830's. The first successful penny paper was the New York Sun.

The first coin to bear the portrait of a living president was the 1926 Sesquicentennial half dollar, the obverse of which bore the heads of Presidents Washington and Coolidge.
