THE BALTIMORE EXPERIENCE

George and Doshia Jacobs "Reflects on 26 years of Marriage."

Reflections:
George Jacobs and Family
By
Herbert H. Locklear

George (Sonny) Jacobs says that sometimes he feels like he has lived in Baltimore city all his life. After twenty-three years, one can become quite acclimated to an area. "Over the years one can develop a real sense of belonging," he says.

George came to Baltimore, as many Lumbee Indians did, seeking a new or different life. "Actually," he shares, "you could say that I came seeking a life. Because when I came to Baltimore, there was no work to be had in my home town of Pembroke."

For George, it was not as strange getting use to the urban life of Baltimore as it was for many Indians coming to the city for the first time. Before Baltimore, he lived several years in Detroit. After Detroit, he was inducted in the Service where he stayed for seven years. He was elevated to the rank of Sergeant before his separation.

It's easy for George to share his experiences in both Detroit and Baltimore. He admits with a big smile that there are a few things that he would just as soon forget and not talk about. But, for the most part, "things have been good." "Especially," he says "since I got saved and really learned how to live and enjoy life regardless of where I find myself."

Sonny, as he is better known, owns and operates his own Dry Wall Business. While he has always done dry wall work, he has owned his own business for the past fifteen years. Says a former employee of the George Jacobs Dry Wall Co., "I would dare to say that Sonny is one of the best in the business."

Doshia, wife of George Jacobs says that Baltimore feels like home. "Her five children were raised here. Most of them were born here. She says that the family has lived at, or near, their current address for eighteen years. Doshia is the daughter of Fernie & Luzanne Barton. George's parents are Lacy and Mary Francis Jacobs.

Mrs. Jacobs does not work a regular job now. She is a seamstress and works from her home plus her duties as a mother, housewife and active church member keep her busy. She is the lead singer with the very popular and very busy South Broadway Spirituals. Both are members of the South Broadway Baptist Church.

When one speaks to "Sonny" about his future, hopes and aspirations they get a chance to hear about his basic philosophy on life... "to work, make an honest living, support the family, love the Lord and do the best I can."

Oh yes, by the way, George is 49 years old on September 17, 1982. Happy Birthday George!

Dear Reader,
"The Baltimore Experience" in this space beginning next week is a three part series featuring Rev. James Miller Dial: The Man.

The popularity of the all-season radial tires is steadily increasing, but can they be mounted on the same car with regular "highway-rub" tires?

"Yes," says an expert, "as long as they are the same construction and same size." Bill Woehrlie, manager of industry standards of the Uniroyal Tire Company, says there are four rules to follow when mixing tires:

1. Radial and bias ply tires should never be mounted on the same axle.
2. If they have to be mixed on the same vehicle, the radials are always mounted in the rear and the bias plys on the front axle.
3. This arrangement should never be rotated front to back.
4. These same rules apply to front-wheel drive vehicles.

Woehrlie notes that some states have adopted regulations prohibiting mixing radial and bias-ply tires on the same vehicle, in any combination. "State rules should always be observed," he says. Your tire dealer can advise you on regulations in your state.

New Formula Helps Motorists

Some encouraging news for our nation's more than 140 million drivers is an advanced anti-freeze/coolant formula that helps to protect car radiators from rust and corrosion.

The formula includes silicone and silicate and locks out rust and corrosion no matter what metal it is protecting. Now used in Prestone II anti-freeze/coolant, it's made even stronger for better aluminum protection.

When weak, neglected anti-freeze/coolant is used in car radiators, the resulting rust build-up may actually clog important passages in your engine. Happily, the new formula seems to be capable of causing rust to bite the dust and putting your car on the road to economy.
