The Robeson County commissioners re-affirmed their selection of David Carter as fire marshal and emergency services coor-dinator Monday night, in dinator Monday night, in spite of a vociferous crowd of fire fighters who ap-peared in opposition to him. An estimated 50 volunteer fire fighters ap-peared in opposition, although a number of firemen spoke in his behalf. One, Harold Bell, from the Saddletree Fire Depart-ment, labeled those in op-position, as "predjudiced." Carter, an Indian, was hired on a recent 4-3 vote with Indian commissioners Wyvis Oxendine and Jack Morgan voting for him Morgan voting for him along with Henry Douglas, the only black on the com-mission. as a Lumberton fireman, as a Lumberton hreman, and has recently worked as a carpenter and minister, replaces Mutt McNeill, who recently retired. Carter, 35, also has taught cardiopulmonary resusita-tion at Robeson Technical College for a number of rebellious firemen saying, "My intention is to leave the office doors open to the firefighter, work with them and just do my job here." He added, "I plan to here." He added, "I plan to support them (irrefighters) in their work. We still have to work together." The brunt of the opposi-tion scemed to come from the Raft Swamp and Allen-ton fire departments, with Carl Pulley, president of the Robeson County Fire Chief's Association, leading the charge. Pulley presented a letter pur-portedly signed by 19 of the 26 fire chiefs in the county. county.

But not everyone at the meeting opposed hiring Carter. Bruce Barton, the editor of The Carolina In-dian Voice, appeared in his behalf and termed him "a fine Christian man who can do the job." Barton asked the firefighter "to give him a chance, since he was hired democratically and fairly." democratically and fairly." Barton also reminded the commissioners that Indians and Blacks are still woefully under-represented in county employment, noting that Carter would be only the second (third if one counts<sup>1</sup> the tri-racial make up of the water department) Indian to College for a head a county department.
