Robeson Drug Probe

LUMBERTON - A Robeson County undercover drug operation netted eight weekend arrests, bringing to 88 the number of people arrested on drug charges since a roundup began late last week, authorities said Sunday evening.

The arrests included charges of cocaine, LSD, marijuana and alcohol, authorities said.

The drug operation began in February when police officers from Red Springs and Fairmont and deputies from Robeson, Scotland and Cumberland counties began making undercover drug buys and gathering information, said Kevin Stone, a narcotics officer with the the Robeson County Sheriff's Department.

The buys led to grand jury indictments of 88 people on 225 drug charges, he said. Authorities began rounding up suspects late Thursday night and early Friday morning.

LRDA Parent Meeting Held

Student Entertainment and Exhibition was the theme for Dec. 17 Parent Meeting for the LRDA Center for the Arts. A Choral Reading entitled "The Last Flower" was presented by the center's drama students. The vocal students sang two numbers "O Holy Night" and "Walk a Little Slower My Friend." The dance students presented warm up exercises, ballet, jazz, modern and theatre dance. The Center's Art Department exhibited visual art works. A display of photographs from last year's performances at the Pentagon and the U.S. Capitol in Washington, DC and last year's productions were also on display.

On December 19 the Center for the Arts students also performed Christmas music at the North Carolina Cancer Institute in Lumberton.

The Center elected parent officers at the meeting. The following were elected: Mr. Larry Locklear and Ms. Mary Poorboy, co chairpersons; Marilyn Locklear, secretary. Those elected to the working committee were Van Sampson, Vivian Jacobs, Rose Woods, Addie M. Locklear, Carolyn Deese, Helen Scott, Kathryn Eddings and Pat Sampson.

Plans are underway for involvement of these officers in LRDA's Center for the Arts activities.

Andrew Lee Hunt

Title IV Provided Student An Opportunity To Explore The Performing Arts
"Through Title IV, I was exposed to a lot of educational and cultural experiences which prepared me for enrollment at the School of the Arts."

Those words are positively affirmed from Andrew Lee Hunt's active participation in the Title IV Part A and Part B Indian Education programs and activities during the past 8 years.

With assistance from Title IV, Andrew, a freshman at the North Carolina School of the Arts in Winston-Salem, was financially able to complete his junior and senior high school years on the Winston Salem campus receiving a diploma in dance during the spring of 1985. He had practiced his talent as a student at the Title IV Part B Lumber River Center for the Arts.

"I don't think I could have adjusted to being away from home or living on campus during those last two years of high school, but because of the Title IV summer enrichment programs provided at Pembroke State University I had the opportunity to experience living on a university campus.

"Living in the Pembroke State University dormitories for six weeks provided me the opportunity to develop independence, self assurance, and interaction skills with students outside the regular junior high classes," Andrew stated.

During the summer of 1982, Andrew participated in a Summer Youth Gifted and Talented Program at PSU which was sponsored by the Robeson County Title IV Part A Indian Education Project. Andrew was one of 60 students participating in the program which provided enrichment instruction in special band, chorus, and science and mathematics.

"My involvement with the Title IV choral group began in the fifth grade at Deep Branch Elementary School. I sang with the school choral group as well as with the Title IV advanced choral group which included students from other county elementary schools.

"While performing with the advanced Youth Choral Group I had the privilege of being involved with special choral recitals at local, state and national events, and also performed with the Title IV Indian Cultural Dancers which I thoroughly enjoyed," Andrew said.

In May of 1981, the advanced Youth Choral Group participated in the Capitol Square Arts Festival sponsored by the North Carolina State Department of Public Instruction, Division of Cultural Arts, in Raleigh.

During the fall of the 1980-81 school year, the advanced Youth Choral Group along with the Title IV Indian Cultural Dancers traveled to McIntosh, Alabama to perform at the annual Creek Indian Nation Pow Wow.

"That was my first experience traveling outside the state. I saw what the cultural and physical environment was like away from Robeson County.

"The trip wasn't a difficult one. The Title IV staff who chaperoned the trip provided individual support and encouragement because they knew that was the first opportunity most of the students had had to travel and spend several nights away from the families.

"I still appreciate the home style environment, the caring and understanding they showed. It helped me develop confidence and a desire to find out more about the world away from home," Andrew said.

During the 1985 summer months, Andrew pursued employment with the Taft Attractions Entertainment Department of Carowinds in Charlotte.

"About 7,000 students nationally audition for summer employment with entertainment productions such as Taft and Kings. I was fortunate to work Carowinds this past summer. It helped me to grow with myself and accept personal responsibility which Title IV had begun to instill while I was actively involved in its programs.

"I would encourage any student to take advantage of the Title IV programs and activities provided during school hours after school hours, and summer vacation. In the long run its for their own benefit," Andrew said.

The Robeson County Title IV Part A Indian Education Project strives to meet the special educational needs of the 9,000 students it serves through various planned programs and activities which include tutorial instruction, computer assisted instruction and visual and performing arts instruction.

"Because my parents supported me and the Title IV programs, I have had many opportunities to develop academically and in the performing arts field," concluded Andrew.

During the 1986 summer, Andrew will be a member of the United States Organization (USO) Caribbean-Mediterranean Tour.

Through the Robeson County Title IV Part A Indian Education Project, many students such as Andrew have had the opportunity to expand their knowledge of the range career options in band, chorus, arts and crafts.
