FROM THE DESK OF THE SUPERINTENDENT

Often, when people hear the term "social worker", they tend to associate it with the county's Department of Social Services. When we talk about social workers, though, we're talking about a different group of people. People who are associated with the school system instead of with the county agency and, therefore, have a completely different list of responsibilities. It's fair for you to ask, then what the function of the school social workers is. While they are primarily concerned with student attendance all the way from Pre-K grade 12 with a priority of keeping students in school, there are many other things that they are involved with. They, for example, use their assessment skills to determine a student's special needs. They provide input for program planning and evaluation and contribute to the development of departmental and system-wide policies. They employ appropriate social work methods in situations affecting the student's educational progress. They serve as advocates for the student in insuring that the student's educational, social, emotional, and material needs are met according to established laws, rules, and regulations. The school social workers provide consultation and in-service experiences for teachers and staff and engage in the mutual exchange of information with community agencies. They serve as a liaison between the home, the school and the community and promote effective resource utilization and positive relations with various public agencies. Additionally, they organize their time, resources and work load to meet their responsibilities and maintain accurate case records and documentation while adhering to a professional code of ethics. The aforementioned are the major functions whose purpose it is to promote the maximum development of all student by prevention and alleviation of problems that interfere with the tasks of learning, through knowledge of human behavior, social systems and social work skills. Our social workers make certain that parents are familiar with the law that makes them liable if their children miss school too many times. That's accomplished through the use of appropriate paperwork provided for the parents. That paperwork is also provided for the courts should they need to follow up on the poor attendance of students. Paperwork in the form of documentation, as a matter of fact, is an important part of what our social workers do. Another important function they serve is to seek out needed resources for families who need particular kinds of services for the benefit of their children. All in all, our 15 social workers are making a major contribution to the needs of our students in the effort to alleviate many of the problems they may have standing in their way to becoming productive students and remaining a part of our school system. I believe it's safe to say that, thanks to their efforts, we have students attending school who, without their presence, might no longer be with us.

Purnell Swett High News

Shown left to right: Vocational teacher, Karen Stickey, assistant principal, Lue Graham and English teacher Yvonne Barnes Dial, greeted the public and parents as they shared information involving technology, integration, academics, sports, curriculum, and other accomplishments of Purnell Swett High School at the Showcase of Schools at Biggs Park Mall in Lumberton February 3. The Carolina Indian Voice

Published each Thursday in Pembroke, N.C. by First American Publications
The first issue of the weekly newspaper, The Carolina Indian Voice was published on January 17, 1973, by then editor, owner and founder, Bruce Barton with a $500 personal loan. It has a proud history of continuous publication, having never missed an issue since its inception. Bruce's sister, Connee Brayboy, the current editor, is the only person to have enjoyed full-time employment since the newspaper's inception. A brother, Garry Lewis Barton came to work full-time in 1973 and ended his affiliation with the newspaper in 1985; its founder, Bruce Barton left to further his education shortly thereafter. Another brother, Ricky Barton, has been affiliated on a part-time basis with the newspaper since its inception. For the first time in years, the four siblings are reunited and dedicated to publishing the best newspaper humanly possible.
