The treaty provided for extinguishing the Indian title to a tract of land not exceeding two millions of acres and for the payment by the United States, of two hundred thousand dollars, by the creation of an irredeemable stock to that amount, and the payment of a perpetual interest thereon of twelve thousand dollars.

On Thursday the twenty-fourth ult. the Legislature of the state of Delaware, appointed JAMES A. BAYARD, a Senator, to represent that state, in the Senate of the United States, for the term of six years, commencing on the fourth day of March next.

Mr. Perkins has obtained leave to introduce into the legislature of Delaware, a bill for the gradual abolition of slavery within that state, which provides, that all children born after the passing of the act shall be free, but to remain the servant of the owner, of the mother until twenty-one years of age. It provides also for the registering by the recorder of each county of all such children, and for all slaves now in this state, and declares that all not registered within six months shall be deemed free. It also provides against the separation of a husband and wife, or child, under 4 years of age, from a parent. It has passed the committee of the whole House, and its friends hope its final passage.

WILMINGTON, N. C.

TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 19, 1805.

Arrived here on Friday last, the Schooner Betsey and Jane, Captain Isaiah Hammond, 33 days from Trinidad. Coming through the Sombrero passage, on the 19th January, lat. 17, 34, long. 53, 59, was boarded by the English privateer brig Crier, of 18 guns, and detained four hours. Captain Hammond has furnished us with the following account of the treatment he received from the British commander:—On coming within gun-shot he fired two guns at the schooner, one of which passed very near under her stern, he then sent an officer with orders to bring Captain H. on board of the privateer with his papers, which being complied with, the Captain saluted him with "you damn'd rascal why did you not heave to sooner." Capt. H. replied he did heave to as soon as he discovered him to be a man of war. The English captain ordered his Boatswain to take the American Captain to the gang-way and give him fifty lashes, which however was not put into execution. He then ordered Captain H. to return to his own vessel, heave his boat out, and return to the privateer, with a threat, that if he was more than one minute and a half, about it, he would fire a shot through him. In the hurry of Captain H. to comply therewith, his boat was stove, and thereby she became so leaky, that it required the greatest exertions to keep her above water in returning to the privateer, on coming along side of which, the English Captain observing the situation of the boat, ordered her to be shoved off and rowed round the brig. Captain H. was then suffered to come on board, but not until the man ropes were taken in, in order to add to his inconvenience, in getting on board in a rough sea. After a detention of four hours, the English Captain waded up the papers of Captain H. and threw them on the deck, and calling him a damned rascal, told him to take his papers and go to hell.

Our fellow-citizens (says the National Intelligencer) will rejoice to perceive the lively solicitude felt in the House of Representatives on the wanton outrages offered to our neutral rights by the unjust and cruel treatment of our seamen by British armed vessels. The belligerent nations ought to know, and the awakening spirit of America will teach them, that national wrongs cannot be endured with impunity, but that they will be rectified, and it may be, avenged with an energy that becomes a powerful nation. We say powerful—for there is no nation on earth more capable of a retaliation that shall be fraught with injury to her aggressors. Fifteen hundred and thirty-eight seamen impressed in the short space of eighteen months! Do those who suffer these wounds to be inflicted on the domestic peop of our citizens, and the honour of our nation, recollect how often famine has stared them in the face, and how often we have saved them from its deathlike scourges? Do they recollect for how much of their wealth and glory they are indebted to us? If they do recollect these things, are they not aware that a powerful nation, however slow she may be in taking her measures, will, when they are once taken, pursue them with a vigour equal to her justice?

We mean no particular reflection by these remarks on any government. We trust every government whose subjects commit injustice, will disavow all participation in it. But we do mean unequivocally to mark out what we believe to be the national temper on this important topic.

Extract of a letter from captain Muller, dated on board the Lydia, Old Kila Roads, abreast of Lewistown, January 10, 1805.

The trial of the Pennsylvania Judges has come to a close, and the result is gratifying to their friends. Eleven Senators pronounced them not guilty, and thirteen found the charges brought against them substantiated. They have of course been acquitted.

On Friday, Jan. 18, (says the Charleston Courier) came on the trial of Richard Dennis, jun. for the wilful murder of Mr. James Shaw, merchant, of Charleston, in the month of August last. The trial occupied the whole of that day, and continued to a late hour in the evening, when on account of the fatigue of mind of the Court, the Jury, and the Advocates concerned, it was thought necessary to adjourn to the next day. The Court again proceeded with the trial on Saturday, and it was not till late in the evening of that day the Judge delivered his charge to the Jury; who after being out a considerable time, returned with the following verdict:

"We find RICHARD DENNIS, the younger, GUILTY; but recommend him to MERCY."
