And then adds,

For the last Instance of my friendly and grateful Regard for the best of Friends, as well as the most upright and ablest of Ministers that has adorned our Country, I give to the Right Honourable William Pitt the Sum of One Thousand Pounds, to be disposed of by him to any of his Children that he may be pleased to appoint for it.

By a second Codicil, June 29, 1763, he confirms this Legacy.

In Case Capt. Tucker shall come to the Possession of this Estate, he gives his Niece Miss Allen an additional Sum of 15,000l. and desired to be buried privately in Claverton Church-Yard.

This being the Birth Day of his Royal Highness Prince Frederick, his Majesty's second Son, who entered into the second Year of his Age, their Majesties received the Compliments of the Nobility on the Occasion at St. James's.

Prince George-Augustus of Mecklenburgh, the Queen's youngest Brother, arrived at Tunbridge Wells on Tuesday Se'night, accompanied by Baron De Witz, Mr. Edwin Stanhope, and several other Gentlemen. Count Bothmar the Danish Minister, and Count Moltke, came in a few Hours after him. At Night they all appeared at the Ball in Pinchbeck's Room; and his Highness not chusing to dance, sat down to Cards with Lady Harrington, Lord and Lady Powis, Lord Clambrasil, Count Welden, Count Bothmar, and several other Persons of Quality. The next Morning he was present at a Concert in the same Rooms, when Mr. Detrick (the Master of the Ceremonies) invited all the Company of the Place, in his Highness's Name, to Tea in the Evening; and the Croud was amazing y great. On Friday he set off for Dover to embark for France. His Highness's Carriage broke down twice between Tunbridge Wells and Seven Oaks, so that he was obliged to go a good Way on Foot; but he happily received no Injury.

At the Seat of—Plumbtree, at Nunnington in Kent, Esq; there is now standing a large Oak, nick named the Fretful Oak, which measures four Rods, or twenty two Yards in Girth, reckoned the largest Oak that ever grew in England.

A private Letter from Paris mentions, that for some Months past the French have been sending so many naval and military Stores to the East-Indies, as give Reason to suspect that something more than securing their paltry Settlements in that Part of the World, is actually upon the Carpet.

His Majesty has been pleased to appoint the Hon. Capt. Wm. Harvey of the 44th Reg, Capt. Philip Skene, of the 27th Reg. and Capt. Thomas Moncrieffe, of the 55th Reg, to
