THESE BODIES OF OURS

By LEONARD A. BARRETT

It is true that they are not worth very much, these bodies of ours.

About the cheapest thing for its size in all the world. Cheap, but indispensable. We could not get along without them. We dress them up as if we thought them very important. We hang jewels on them and spend fortunes trying to ward off the ravages of time. We decorate them with all sorts of cosmetics for the purpose of making them appear other than they are. Poor body! A marvelous peak in the evolutionary process; truly, we are "fearfully and wonderfully made." Physiology tells us that only the cerebellum, the back part of the brain, is essential to physical existence. If the front part of the brain is removed, the body can still function in terms of physical reactions. The front brain is the center of our mental and emotional energy, which without the body, would be incapable of expression. In other words, our personal self needs a body through which it can both manifest and express itself.

These bodies of ours are "living temples"—every part of which vibrates with thoughts, desires and impulses. Think of our loss in music, architecture and in the mechanical trades, if we had to part with the human hand. Think of the unbearable silence if we should lose the organs of speech. Think of the tragedy of blindness if the optic nerve should become paralyzed. Movement, sound, light: these belong to life.

$67.00 was reported, $97.00 was reported at the third quarterly conference, which made a total of $265.85. Seven persons have united themselves with the church.

Dr. Lucas the presiding elder, congratulated the church on having Dr. J. E. Holt as pastor, and a very successful pastor. Dr. Holt is serving his fifth year as pastor of St. Paul church.

LIGHTNER-HAYES WEDDING

By L. T. Christmas

Tuesday morning June 29th at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Lightner 419 S. East St. Raleigh, witnessed the marriage of Miss Margaret Rosell Lightner one of Raleigh's leading social elites to Lewyn Hayes formerly of Kingston.

The wedding which took place at 7:30 saw many friends and relatives of both the bride and groom.

The brides mother was dressed in white satin ensemble. She carried a large bouquet of flowers with a green background. Her bridesmaid was dressed in a rose crepe gown and was wearing a large corsage of flowers of the same hue.

The couple will make their suit and was well composed as he took unto himself his bride with a ring ceremony.

The brides mother was dressed in a white with blue tunic effect, which added to the dignified air of Raleigh's leading society matron.

The room was nicely decorated with lilies and various other flowers which added to the sacredness of the occasion.

Immediately following the wedding a reception was given for the couple.

Gifts consisted of hundreds of articles of glassware, silverware, table and bed linens, household articles, furniture and even a ham by the father with the words inscribed "This is your last affair."

The couple will make their home in Raleigh.

NAACP WARNS OF UNFAIRNESS IN WPA REDUCTIONS

NEW YORK, June 30—Warning that the reductions in the forces of the WPA now taking place will work unfair hardship on Negroes on the WPA was contained in a telegram sent to H. L. Hopkins, WPA administrator, by the NAACP yesterday.

The NAACP points out that the proportion of Negroes absorbed by re-employment in private industry is far below that of white and that this factor ought to be considered in eliminating Negroes from WPA rolls. The telegram urged that reductions in order to be fair, should be made in proportion to the employment by private industry. The full text of the telegram, signed by Walter White, secretary, follows:

"In WPA reductions may we strongly urge that special consideration be given to status of Negroes now employed on WPA projects. Recent survey by National

LINENS FOR A LIFETIME

Glamorous New Colors Make Sleep an Adventure

IT'S thought, not fingers, that makes the modern linen closet a thing of beauty and a joy forever. For today, practically everything a woman's heart desires comes ready for use. Yet the 1937 bride gets just as much of a once-in-a-lifetime thrill when she sits down to plan her linen-chest as her grandmother did when she folded away each laboriously embroidered pillow case.

According to Maud Scholl, fashion director of a famous textile mill, the day is past when plain white sheets must dominate your linen chest. "Every woman," she says, "deserves the fun of at least one glamorous set of deep, rich sheets, gently scented with one of the new exotic French pine scents."

In fact, this spring witnessed the debut of bed linens out of the work-day into the personality class. We in the textile industry see no reason why sheets should lag behind the more obviously decorative house-furnishings in imaginative appeal and attractiveness. Color is a tremendously important factor in modern living. Color, more than anything else, expresses a woman's personality. And after all it is her personality that endows her home with real individuality.

One flower pastel range of sheets, for instance, has been created with the cooperation of Irene Hayes, the famous young artist. And such lovely names as she has given them—gladiolus, daphne, primrose, magnolia (a delicate yellow-green), hydrangea (a blue-lavender), azalea, "Trillium" (a soft pink), and "Lily" (a pale pink)—are the perfect expression of the feminine personality. No matter how delicate, they are alive, living-personality colors.

On the other hand, consider accessory or accent colors, such as jewel tones. An important mill has a whole line of bed linens styled by Maud Scholl, 1111 11th Avenue.

Jewelry, Emerald, sapphire, ruby, rust-coral (a dark cedar color) and a tremendously smart brown, the shade of the rare coffee diamond.

You may prefer the less dramatic colors for everyday sleeping, yet it is a good thing to add accent to your linen chest with a few dramatic jewel tones, either in all solid color or daintily bordered white.

Perhaps you will put your sheets away on linen shelves with sliding glass doors; perhaps your first linen closet will be only the two bottom drawers of the dining room buffet. In any case here is a list of all the things Maud Scholl's are "musts."
