Calvin's Digest-

Continued from page three. test of time, that is not the way it is done. A Negro could do with Negro music what Gershwin did with it, if he would only try because we are too lazy to do anything with them ourselves. Right now, Benny Goodman is better known for playing Negro spirituals, even though he jazzes them, than almost any Negro. And why? It is not always color that keeps us back. It is sheer laziness, indifference, the love of a good time, and the absolute refusal to apply ourselves for fear we will miss something of what is going on in the street or at some social function, that does not amount to a thing.

The Negro has creative ability. That is generally admitted. The question is: Will the Negro sit idly by and allow his own native artistic potentialities to be appropriated by others who make fame and fortune from them, and we not even be invited to take a bow at the show-off?

Today, more white people are famous for what they have written about, or done for the Negro, than are Negroes. Let us beware.

by M. C. Burt
Negro County Agent

All Negro farm women and 4-H club girls are asked to attend the third canning demonstration to be held in the auditorium at Hillsboro Wednesday August 4, at 2:00 p.m.

Picture a woman optimistic by nature, tactful in approach; abounding in enthusiasm, with in her fellowmen. Add to this an insatiable desire to be of service to them and you and a partial list of the characteristics of Iertha B. Sawyer, who has enjoyed a varied teaching experience in her native South Carolina.

Whether a school of out, Mrs. Sawyer is a student, learning from whatever sources or persons she meets, contacting persons of both races in an effort to discover striking new ways to make and serve delicious dishes, realizing that conservation and preparation of foods are works of art.

As Hostess of the Teacheage in Georgetown, she has endeavored to serve well balanced meals from a stocked pantry.

In the final analysis, happiness is the goal of every one, that happiness depends on health and health on properly balanced meals.

The subject matter of the demonstration will be the following:

1. Advantages of Home Canning
2. Methods of Canning: Open Kettle, Cold Pack
3. Steps in Canning
4. Selecting products to be canned.
5. Selecting canning methods
6. Testing and preparing Jars, Caps and Rubbers
7. Sorting and grading products to be canned.

Aunt Barbara Says . . .

To the readers of the CAROLINA TIMES: Aunt Barbara has agreed to answer all questions free of charge providing a clipping of this column is sent in. All requesting personal answers must send a self addressed stamped envelope and ten cents to AUNT BARBARA, Box 69, in care of the CAROLINA TIMES, DURHAM, N. C.

Dear Aunt Barbara:
I am a young girl of seventeen, light brown skinned, long hair and am five feet three inches tall. I am considered nice looking, but the thing I want to know is: Why is it that I'm not as popular as other girls I know? Many of my girl friends are not so good looking but they are very popular with both the girls and fellows.

Yours,
Gladys T.

Dear Gladys:
That good looks don't mean a thing. Have you stopped to think about it? You ask why you aren't as popular as others of your acquaintance. Check up on yourself. Gladys. Are you a good listener? Do you talk about your self or do you let the other fellow do the talking?

Do you do as others want you to do or are you an obnoxious person?
Are you friendly to everyone?
Do you like some kind of sport?
Can you hold an interesting conversation?
If you can answer truthfully you are not or can not be as popular with both sexes. I will add that neatness counts a lot in a girl's goal toward popularity.

Yours for success,
AUNT BARBARA

Dear Aunt Barbara:
My boy friend tells me that he loves me. Yet he doesn't act as if he does when we're in public.

— M. R. A.

Dear M. R. A.:
I am surprised at your saying that your boy friend doesn't act as if he cares for you in PUBLIC. What girl wants her friend to hold on to her in public as if he were afraid she'll run away and get lost. Isn't this telling you that he loves you enough, rather than have him maw all over you in public? He has plenty sense, you had better think again before you think you want the boy friend to act "lovesick" in public.

Modern Homes Keep Step With Lighting Progress

Soft shadows and emphasizing highlights in this room are produced by new lamps which provide eye-comfortable lighting and enhance the decorative scheme.

By Jean Prentice

THE home that wants to avoid being "just another house" must keep pace with the new aids that science is bringing to modern housing to insure more comfortable living. And it is just such aids that the nighttime appearance of your living room will reflect if it is lighted with the new I. E. S. lamps.

These lamps, made in a wide variety of types by numerous manufacturers, and sold by good stores everywhere, carry tags certifying that they comply with the scientific specifications of the Illuminating Engineering Society. They provide soft, diffused light that is kind to the eyes and, at the same time, harmonize with any decorative scheme. Millions of them have been sold, and millions of eyes are thankful.

Until your home has some of these lamps, you'll never know what real eye-comfort and decorative beauty can be provided by portable lamps. This is not to suggest that you buy a number of them at once, but that you at least make a start with them toward putting your home lighting on a scientific basis.

Just notice the effect in the living room illustrated here. The lamp behind the davenport, one of the new I. E. S. types, has a 10-inch plastic bowl concealed behind the shade, and carries one of the new three-light bulbs, from which three different amounts of light may be obtained, at successive turns of the switch. Note that it is placed behind the davenport, where the light reflected upward bathes the entire room with a soft glow, while the light sent downward illuminates the full length of the davenport.

The end table lamp beside the easy chair is also of the I. E. S. type, and gives a generous amount of light from one 100-watt bulb.

These two lamps form the start of the lighting program in this living room. Later on, a second end-table lamp matching the one now used will be purchased, and the two placed on matching end-tables at both ends of the davenport. The floor lamp will then go over to the rear of the fireside chair.

The owners of this home feel that the money spent on their lighting program will do more to keep them in step with modern home progress than a similar amount could possibly do in additions to or changes in the furnishings. Don't you agree with them?

BEAUTY AND ROMANCE by Marie Downing

DIRECTOR, LARIEUSE BEAUTY FOUNDATION

The Larieuse Beauty Foundation was established by the Godfrey Manufacturing Company to study methods of preserving women's natural beauty, and to make the results of this research available to the public.

PERSPIRATION

"His brow is wet with honest sweat."

Perspiration is above criticism for the working man, but for us dear ladies it is a decided foe of attractiveness, for to be completely delectable and to have the irresistible charm of feminine daintiness is the wish of every woman.

During these warm summer days our efforts to control excessive perspiration becomes a real battle. Frequent bathing to keep the skin fresh and clean is of primary importance. A cold sponge or shower is an excellent preventive, and a few drops of your favorite perfume or softe bath salts in the bath water will help achieve your goal.

Light Make-up

If you perspire freely about the face, makeup should be used sparingly and applied carefully. Don't make the mistake of trying to overcome the effects of perspiration by a heavy application of cosmetics, for this would soon become streaked and blotched. As a result your appearance would be worse than if no makeup at all were used.

Rinsing the face with witch hazel or any good astringent lotion before applying cosmetics is a good method. This has a mildly astringent effect that will check the flow of perspiration and also soothe and cool the skin.

Your choice of powder for the summer should be made very carefully. Be sure to get one as light in weight as possible. A heavy powder clots easily on moist skins—so the lighter the powder, the better for those who perspire freely.

Don't feel handicapped if your skin is moist. It will probably look fresh and smooth and will not have the parched dried out appearance that the warm, sunny days bring to those with drier complexions. If you keep your skin clear, eyes, eyebrows, lips and hair attractively groomed, you won't have to worry about cosmetics, except for a little powder to keep your nose and forehead from becoming shiny.

A certain quantity of perspiration is normal. Failure to perspire is nothing to be proud of, because it is an indication of abnormal health conditions.

Two Ways to Relief

Make a complete change of clothing daily. Air your dresses and shoes after each wearing. To guard against even a suggestion of perspiration odor, use one of the astringents or deodorants on the market for that purpose. In some cases a mild solution of warm water and alum is sufficient astringent to discourage perspiration.

An excellent treatment for more difficult cases of underrmin perspiration is four parts distilled water to one part aluminum chloride. Do not use this too often. Once every three days is sufficient for the first few applications. After the second week, once a week will do the work. Sometimes three applications at three-day intervals will relieve the condition. An application every ten days thereafter will prevent recurrence.

Be very careful not to use this solution too frequently. If you do so, you can cause a skin problem. Let the solution dry thoroughly on the skin before putting on your dress. (For sensitive skins, the parts bathed with this solution should be rinsed after it has dried.) Always wash under the arms before applying.

And in closing—"Let your brow beget no needless sweat."
