TESTED RECIPE

By Frances Lee Barton

GINGERBREAD has as many roles in the household as an actor in a stock company. Sometimes gingerbread is a company man—and sometimes it is a between-meal filler—support for the childless. With a dish of apple sauce and a glass of milk, hot gingerbread makes a grand, satisfying lunch. Here's yet another recipe for gingerbread—and how good it is!

Hot Gingerbread Cakes

2 cups sifted cake flour; 3 teaspoons double-acting baking powder; 2 teaspoons ginger; 1 teaspoon cinnamon; 1/4 teaspoon salt; 1/2 cup butter or other shortening; 1/2 cup sugar; 1 egg, unbeaten; 1/2 cup molasses; 1/2 cup milk.

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder, spices, and salt, and sift together three times. Cream butter thoroughly, add sugar gradually, and cream together until light and fluffy. Add egg and beat well; then molasses. Add flour, alternately with milk, a small amount at a time, beating after each addition until smooth. Turn into greased cup-cake pans, filling them 3/4 full. Bake in moderate oven (375° F.) 30 minutes, or until done. Serve with whipped cream or apple sauce. Makes 2 dozen cup cakes.

This batter may be stored in cold place as long as 24 hours before baking. Cover partially filled cup-cake pans with damp cloth, then waxed paper; tie securely and store in refrigerator until cakes are to be baked.
