PERSONALITIES IN MUSIC

JOHN W. BRATTON, A.S.C.A.P.

Keeping Young With Melody

By Daniel I. McNamara

JOHN W. Bratton, song writer for more than half a century, now seventy-one years, links the modern school of song with the traditions of the Gay Nineties—long before the turn of the century he composed "The Sunshine of Paradise Alley", which still moves grandparents to recollections of their childhood. And last year, his "Sweetheart, Let's Grow Old Together", swept England, then America, as one of the hits of the year. His wife and daughter, shown above, are his not-so-severe critics.

A native of Wilmington, Del., Bratton was successively choir singer, theatrical amateur, and finally a singer in Broadway productions. Early in his theatrical career he began writing songs. After he created "The Sunshine of Paradise Alley", he was unable to keep pace with the demands for his product. He wrote all the songs for memorable musical shows, "Hodge Podge & Co.", "The Pearl and the Pumpkin", "The Star and Garter" and Bratton's interest in A.S.C.A.P. shares his loyalty to the Lambs, famous New York theatrical club of which he is a life member. Almost daily he may be seen, in a neck in the Lambs, writing lyrics or composing music, for he is adept at both.
