N. C. Mutual Head Pleads For Teachers And Children

BY C. C. SPAULDING
As the public schools open in our community, we want to take this method of welcoming the teachers to our city. We realize that they are not being paid salaries commensurate with the service they are rendering. While this is a recognized fact, our suggestion would be for them to render such valuable services in the school room through the developing of better citizens of our youth. The 9th County and State officials will recognize their contribution to the community and State and we hope that their salaries are more in keeping with their services. We welcome the teachers to our community, and invite them to visit our business establishments, our churches and our homes.

self seems to be confronting a crucial test, every parent, teacher, and student is faced with a grave challenge. The thing which is uppermost in our mind however, and the thing which should be uppermost in the mind of every citizen, is the question of saving the children. On them rests the future of the Race.

The kind of training a child should receive should be given serious consideration. The fact that ninety per cent of the young men and women who graduate from colleges today are earning their living with their hands should be evidence sufficient that more vocational training in our schools is a prime necessity.

Aside from the three "R's", students should be taught the habits of right living, honesty, sobriety, and thrift, plus training that will teach them how to do something. Our race is (Please turn to page 8)

Miss C. Isabel Yeargin-Weds

RALEIGH, Sept. 9.—The First Baptist Church of Raleigh was the scene of a charming wedding ceremony on Saturday evening, Sept. 3rd, when Miss Carrie Isabel Yeargin became the bride of Ernest Preston Broome. The vows were spoken in a setting of rare charm and beautiful simplicity with altar decorations of palms which formed the background for the four tall candelabra containing white cathedral candles and tall vases of Easter lilies and asters.

The Rev. Wendell C. Somerville, General Secretary of the Baptist Convention of North Carolina, performed the impressive ceremony.

Preceding the ceremony, a musical program of rare excellence was rendered with John Barrett of New York City at the organ. His special organ selections were: "I Love You Truly" and "Ave" rendered as the processional, Lohengrin's Wedding March and Mendelssohn's Wedding March as the recessional. Miss Margaret Rice, soprano, of Durham, sang "My Heart At Thy Sweet Voice" and "Because."

Mrs. Louise Biggs Simmons was candle lighter and wore yellow lace over taffeta with gold accessories.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. Sept. 8

—Terminating the charges of discrimination and brutal treatment of Negro workers employed by Tennessee Valley Authority, at the hands of TVA foremen and walking bosses "series," the Chattanooga Times calls upon the Joint Congressional Committee now investigating the Authority in public hearings at Knoxville, to explore these charges thoroughly with a view to eliminating any type of discrimination against these workers.

N. C. COLLEGE ENROLLMENT REACHES NEW HIGH

Chidley Hall, The old frame dormitory at North Carolina College which was expected to be abandoned for the 1939-39 school year, will be called upon to help house the large number of young women, students who have already sent their applications to President Shepard. According to applications the regular dormitory for women as well as the senior home will be crowded and Chidley Hall, which will be pressed into service, will be well filled.

Indications are that this year's enrollment at the college will set an all time record. The largest number of students ever to attend the institution will enroll Sept. 20.

Negro Education Day At Manteo Draws More Than 3000

MANTEO, N. C. Sept. 9.—More than three thousand teachers and students joined in the September 1st pilgrimage to Manteo to be present on the sacred ground of the birthplace of the nation in celebration of the 361st anniversary of the coming of the first English settlers to America; to participate in Negro Education Day sponsored by the Education division of The Works Progress Administration, and to witness Paul Green's Epitaph Drama, "The Lost Colony."

The Fort Raleigh Reservation at Manteo has been rebuilt on or near the same spot where Sir Walter Raleigh's first colonies were founded more than three and one half centuries ago by Captains Philip Amadas and Arthur Barlowe. The reconstructed city of the Lost Colony is surrounded by a stockade of pointed logs. It has a charming chapel, solid log houses and grim stockades of pine logs, a huge museum of priceless 16th century relics, and an immense open air theater on the edge of the water which is equipped with every conceivable piece of theatrical equipment to help bring to vivid life the people of the colony on the actual site of their battles and sufferings. All technical equipment has been concealed. The towering lights at each side which help create the astonishingly beautiful lighting effects, have been disguised as tall juniper watch towers for the soldiers. Even the control room with its immense switchboards dotted the lights and where the theater's own telephone system has been transformed into a quoin colonist's log cabin to lend more atmosphere to the drama.

The beautiful chapel is on a small slightly part from the central atrium of the colony near the site where on August 13, 1587 occurred the first administration of a protestant sacrament in the new world, the baptism of the friendly Indian Manteo. A week later the infant Virginia Dare was christened.

It is in the Lost Colony Theater that the Symphonic drama, "The Lost Colony" opened its second annual presentation on July 3, 1937 and continued with performances Wednesday, Fri. Saturday and Sunday evenings Sept. 9.

According to information gathered from officials and guides at the Fort Raleigh Reservation, although the dramatic services have been held in Virginia Dare's Birthday by the Islanders since 1934 in memory of the lost colony it was not until the late 1930s when private interests built the five mile Wright Memorial Bridge across a part of Albemarle Sound and a date

County erected another mile of bridges from Hags Head to the island was it accessible to tourists. The new accessibility of Roanoke Island gave rise to plans for a larger celebration, complete with a pageant of scenes from the lives of the colonists. The first pageant gave inspiration to the great American Playman, Playwright, Paul Green from whose genius sprang the present Drama.

Negro Adult Education Program

The program in observance of Negro Education day began at seven P. M. and it consisted of welcome messages from WPA officials, and beautiful music. Especially outstanding was the singing of Mrs. Nell Hunter of Durham nationally acclaimed soprano and Choral Director of the Federal Music Project for Negroes in North Carolina, who sang: "Thus Saith The Lord" from Elijah and led two spirituals in which the entire audience of the outdoor theater took part. Mrs. Hunter sang with an unforgettable sweetness and she received request after request to more spirituals. The blending of the thousands of Negro voices in singing Swing Low Sweet Chariot was touching, to say the very least, as the mellow tones echoed over the water.
