FASHIONS and SHOPPING

Notes From DURHAM'S BLUE BOOK

BY MISS MORINE DIXON

The under graduate chapter of the Omega Fraternity was a host at an informal party last Thursday evening. The party was held in the lovely home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cobb, a good brother of the Fraternity on Thaxton Avenue. The evening was one of merriment, and was spent dancing, dining and playing cards.

During the parking of the repeat that darning David Cooke, one of the Dan Juans of state's campus, acted as toast master. He had with him, as his company lovely Margaret Williams, Miss Mary Lino, a soror of Delta Sigma Theta, brought greetings from the local chapter. She was attractively gowned in a flock of blue velvet. Nick Lightner dropped in on the group from Raleigh with Othelia Watson. Other guests present were: Thelma Spaulding, Maria "Popsey" Burton, Thelma Fitzgerald, Marion Southerland, R. Christmas, Annie Lee Boyd, and the Burton Sisters.

Miss Ruth Ferdinand, a teacher in the Goldsboro system, was home for the week end. When I saw her she was doing some heavy shopping although she looked as if she had just stepped out of "Fashion." She wore a beautiful rust fur trimmed coat, a tam effect rust hat with a green and brown feather, a green suit, brown shoes, purse and gloves. Pretty nifty, eh?

TRUE STORIES
PROGRESS THROUGH CHEMISTRY

"Soapless Soaps"

A step in the manufacture of soapless soaps, which form billows of foamy suds even in the hardest water.

WHAT is it that the small boy would gladly do without, but which is otherwise regarded as so essential in the bathroom, kitchen, and laundry? The answer to this riddle is easy to guess. Soap such as is now commonly used for toilet and laundry purposes has been known for hundreds of years. A Roman writer who lived in the time of Christ told how it was made in those days from wood ashes and goat's tallow, the same general method used today in certain rural sections of this country. In the commercial manufacture of ordinary soaps, an alkaline material such as caustic soda (corresponding to the "lye" from wood ashes) is added to an oil or fat, and when this mixture is heated the fatty acid of the oil unites with the metal part of the alkali to form soap. While soap is in general an excellent cleansing agent, it has certain limitations due to its chemical composition. When used in hard water, for example, the fatty acid part of the soap combines with the lime and magnesium salts in the hard water to form sticky, gummy compounds which will not dissolve in the water. These sticky "lime soaps" are the cause of the familiar gummy ring which forms in the bath tub. They likewise cause trouble in the laundry since, once deposited on the garments being washed, they are hard to remove. Laundries and textile mills have spent millions of dollars in "softening" water, in wasting soap, and in damaging goods because ordinary soap doesn't work with hard water, and while the total amount of soap used is increased, the amount of clean fabric is reduced.

Calvin's Newspaper Service TESTED RECIPE

By Frances Lee Barton
A hot savory oyster dish is a great comfort to the lone man—and woman—on a raw, cold day. And it is a favorite with the assembled family to sit up and take notice you'll walk into the dining room some dinner-time bearing a Bluepoint Pie! Needless to say, in order to match the delicious filling, the crust must be simply perfect. For perfect pie crust, you can depend on that wonder worker, double-acting baking powder.

Bluepoint Pie
3 cups sifted flour; 2 teaspoons double-acting baking powder; 1/2 teaspoon salt; 6 tablespoons butter or other shortening; 1/2 cup milk (about); 3 cups drained oysters; 1/2 teaspoon salt; dash of cayenne; 4 tablespoons melted butter.
Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder and salt, and sift again. Cut in shortening. Add milk gradually, stirring until soft dough is formed. Turn out on slightly floured board and knead 20 seconds, or enough to shape. Roll 1/4 of dough 1/4 inch thick; line a 9-inch pie plate, allowing dough to extend 1/2 inch beyond edge of plate. Fold inward even with rim of plate. Fill with oysters; sprinkle with salt, cayenne, and butter. Roll other half of dough 1/4 inch thick; with sharp knife make slits to permit escape of steam. Fit over oysters, pressing edges together with floured fork. Bake in hot oven (450° F.) 20 minutes. Serves 6.
