Wife Dies Week After Husband

CHARLOTTE Death struck quick, fast and accurately in one of this city's best known families and friends here have joined bereaved relatives in the passing of the two substantial citizens. On Thursday, July 18th the Grim Reaper claimed John P. Adams, well known plasterer and cement finisher, of 2417 Booker street. He had been ill for a long time. Funeral services for him were held in the Simpson Memorial Methodist church here on Sunday July 21. The next Thursday, July 25, death again visited that home, taking with him the widow, Mrs. Hattie W. Adams, who was ill at the time of her husband's passing. She departed a week to the day of her husband's death. Funeral services for her were held a week after his were held in the same church last Sunday, July 28 at the same hour. Official acting at both rites was the pastor, Rev. G. E. Houge, who was assisted by other ministers. He gave the eulogy for both as well. The passing of these two stalwart christians left a pall of gloom in the church and in the city. The late Mrs. Adams was too ill to attend the rites for her lamented husband. Besides each other today they rest beneath the sod in a local cemetery. A step daughter, and sisters and brothers survive both.

FASHIONS REVIEW

For the late summer and early and if fitted closely with gathers fall the trend is toward the new above and below will make your silhouette, bloused and straight waistline tiny. This dress will look equally well with or without the pleats and fullness or skirt. B—This dress presents the new silhouette, a two piece frock with a jacket like blouse. This gives a slenderising effect especially if the pleats are centered in the front. This arrangement should be a favorite

Final Rites Held For Greensboro Minister

GREENSBORO — Historic St. Matthews M. E. church was the scene of a simple but impressive funeral service here last Wednesday afternoon as last rites were said for Dr. R. T. Weatherby, outstanding civic leader and for 22 years pastor of the church. The eulogy was delivered by Rev. R. W. Winchester, pastor of Hoover's Temple, High Point, former classmate, and holder of exchange pastorate with the deceased for 27 years. Rev. Winchester lauded Dr. Weatherby's labors as student, minister, civic leader, friend and husband. Especially did he speak of the helpfulness of the deceased to college unit of the University of North Carolina, and Mrs. Elizabeth Yates, of the staff of Fortune magazine. Dr. Weatherby died after an illness of ten days. He was first brought down while attending the regional conference of the Methodist church in St. Louis and on his return to Greensboro entered L. Richardson hospital for an operation from which he failed to recover. He was a native of Durant, Miss., and attended the Gammon Theological seminary, Atlanta, Ga., where he received the D. D. degree. For a number of years he was lecturer at the Methodist Preachers' institute in Orangeburg, S. C. and he organized the Negro YMCA in Atlanta, Ga., and served as secretary of the association, while he was counselor for the Atlanta Life Insurance Company. Later he served as pastor of the Methodist church in Nashville. Dr. Weatherby came to Greensboro in 1911 to assume the pas-

Charlotte Public Library Holds Re-Opening

This city's colored Public Library is all dressed up. Impressive services held Thursday night marked the reopening of after a program of renovation and beautification, and colored Charlotteans are proud of the new project. A program was rendered in front of the library and appearing on its were His Honor, the Mayor, Ben Douglas, and other notables of the city hall, and Dr. H. M. McCrory, president of Johnson C. Smith University, who accepted the plant on behalf of the colored citizenry, and others. Presiding was Dr. Edson E. Ackman, for many years a practicing medical man here, and a civic leader of prominence. There appeared music groups and other individuals on the feature program. For the past several weeks the library has been undergoing these improvements and also has been refurbished. A full time librarian in on duty there. The library is at Brevard and Second streets, and invites inspection.

TO PREPARE THOUSANDS FOR FLYING

National Aeronautics Council Plans Course Under Military, Naval and Civil Experts

THE National Aeronautics Council has just launched a movement to teach aviation in its various branches to thousands of young men and women, under the guidance of recognized experts who are officials of civilian flying services as well as ranking officers, or ex-officers, of the Army and Navy. The individual cost will be nominal—only twenty-five cents a week. The plan has in mind the many youths who are enthusiastic on the subject of becoming pilots or seeking careers in airport work or airplane manufacturing, but who cannot afford a flying school course, or who are in localities where aviation training schools are not available. It aims to present by mail the numerous preparatory steps in "ground school" work and emphasizes the point that a flying aspirant must learn a great many things on the ground before being fitted to sit at the controls of a plane. General James J. Fochet, retired, formerly Chief of Air Corps, U. S. Army, heads the Editorial Board. Captain Holden C. Richardson, for-young people. Rev. W. T. Lomax, superintendent of the Greensboro district of the M.E. church presided over the service. Music was by the church choir and the boy's sextette, one of Dr. Weatherby's own sponsored organizations. A brief talk outlining the accomplishments in and benefits to the community was given by Dr. Glenn Johnson, of Woman's college of the University of North Carolina. Among the many letters of condolence read at the funeral, a few of the more significant were from Lunsford Richardson, president of Vicks Chemical Company, A. W. McAlister, chairman of the board of directors, Pilot Life Insurance Company, Dr. W. C. Jackson, administrative dean of the Women's principal American airports and others. All of these, however, are to be clearly and painstakingly explained in simple phraseology, as are more than 8,000 pages of instruction text. Aviation authorities estimate that 900,000 or more trained men and women will be absorbed by civil and government air branches within the next twelve months. Particulars may be obtained from, and applications for the course made with, the National Aeronautics Council, Instruction Department, 87 West 47th St., New York, N. Y.
