

ANNUAL MEETING PUBLIC WELFARE TO OPEN JUNE 24 IN RALEIGH, N. C.

Working on the theme of "Public Welfare Practices and Problems in a War Situation," Negro social workers of North Carolina will meet for their 17th annual public welfare institute June 24 and 25 at Shaw University, Raleigh, was the announcement made this week by Mrs. W. T. Bost, State Welfare Commissioner.

Speakers on the two-day program include several nationally known leaders in all lines of Negro activities. P. B. Young, Sr., editor of the Norfolk Journal and Guide, will talk at a dinner meeting of Negro staff workers at the Arcade Hotel at which C. C. Spaulding of Durham will preside.

Addressing the general sessions in Greenleaf Hall on the campus of the Raleigh institution on the subject of community organization will be Jesse O. Thomas, special assistant to the American Red Cross director of domestic operations. Mrs. Imabel Burns Lindsay, acting director of the Howard University special work division, will discuss ways of relating the individual to other persons, groups and national problems.

R. L. McMillan, State civilian defense director, and T. S. Johnson, State OPA head, members of the state office staff of the State Board of Charities and Public Welfare and of staffs of private and county welfare units will appear on the program. From the state welfare staff will be Commissioner Bost; Lily E. Mitchell, director of the child welfare division, and S. J. Hawkins, director of field service. From the State Board of Health will be Dr. Walter J. Hughes and Jennie Douglas, health education advisor.

County welfare workers on the program will include Mrs. Jeanette Sills, Franklin, Mrs. John Lee Wilson, Rockingham; Annie D. Singfield, Anson; James B. Unthank, Forsyth; Mrs. Mabel B. Wortham and Llewlyn M. C. Hayes, Wake, and Mrs. Lillian Cannady, staff nurse of the Wake County health department.

Representing private agencies will be Studie D. Cox, home management supervisor, Fayetteville, and O. E. Davis, High Point Negro boys commissioner. Ruth L. Stevenson of Morrisser Training School, will talk Friday afternoon.

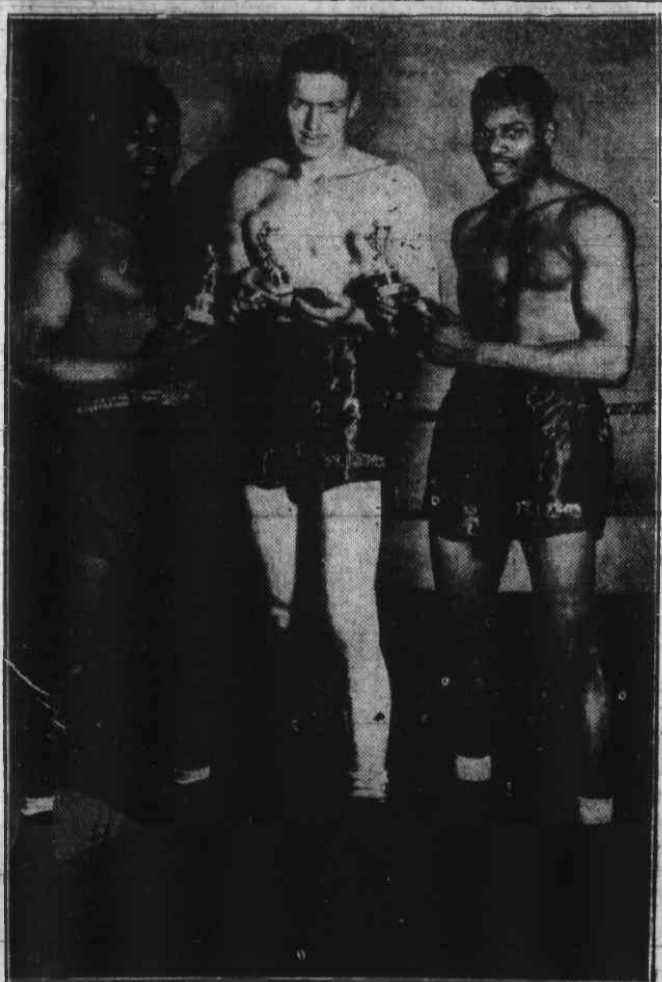

Presiding at the general sessions will be Mrs. Bost, Anna A. Cassatt, director of staff development for the state department; John R. Larkins, State consultant on Negro work; Mrs. Viola B. Martin, Winston-Salem Family Service Agency; and Mrs. Carolyn L. Otey, Guilford county welfare department.

Bricks Boys And Girls Camp To Open Monday, July 5th

Irrespective of increased difficulties connected with the operation of camps for boys and girls this year, the North Carolina Congress of Parents and Teachers has agreed that such difficulties are very small in comparison with the great need for proper guidance for young folk. President Jernagin insists that parents are rather unworthy ones when they allow their interest in children to become seasonal. Increased juvenile crime, delinquency, misguided and misdirected leisure time activities offer a greater challenge to PTA Organizations.

On July 5th boys and girls who have been approved will go to Bricks, N. C. again to spend four weeks. The camp is to be staffed by specialists who will provide wholesome food, a healthful environment of play and constructive learning experiences.

The camp was started in 1938 by Mrs. L. B. Yancey, who is now chairman of the state camp committee. Through hard work and fine cooperation of parents and staff the health facilities there are unsurpassed. The State Board of Health has approved the camp and has given it an "A" rating. The director of activities will be Mrs. J. R. Barnes of Henderson, N. C. Parents who wish to make application for their children may do so through Mrs. Barnes. The camp is for children between ages five and twelve. They are requested to bring their health certificates, play clothes, light bed coverings and a fee of four dollars a week to take care of board and lodging.

ABBE'S ASTROLOGY READING 25¢ SUCCESS BUSINESS LOVE HAPPINESS Advice ON THE PROBLEMS OF LIFE by ABBE WALLACE SERVICE

DMC — My husband and I live here in a small town. He writes insurance and I am a beautician. We have two houses, bought a '42 Plymouth, bought nice furniture the six years we've been married. Now some friends of ours in the north are trying to coax us to come up there where the big money is and I am satisfied here where I am. Do you think we should give up what we have here and make the change. I have the utmost confidence in you.

Ans: — There's big money to be made in the cities but living expenses are big too. These friends of yours haven't been able to accomplish as much as you and your husband during the past six years, that's proof enough that you are better off right where you are. There is a possibility that your husband will be drafted in service soon and you would be acting wisely to remain in the small town where you have a business and can look after your property and other holdings.

AOX — I am a constant reader of your column. Why is it that the boy in my neighborhood acts so funny? He's always talking about he is for their benefit, not yours. He has "sweet nothings" to whisper to you once he feels sure of you. Don't fall for his line. You're too young to go regular with any one boy. Let him know too, that his big talk doesn't frighten you in the least. CL — I read your column every week so please try to help me. I live on a farm with my husband and 3 children. My husband and I don't get along so well. He asks me to leave all the time but I am trying to stay and raise my children. Must I quit him?

Ans: — It's not your husband that you should quit but the OTHER MAN that's been hanging around pulling after you for the past two years. Your husband means business now and if you don't give up this fellow and live true to him, he's going to put you out. It's hard to resist as your boy friend but you can't afford to run off and leave your little babies just for a "fling" with him. Your husband will be willing for you to stay if you behave yourself.

PG — My husband and I are both working and doing fine. We want to know would it be wise to open up a boarding house or should we continue on our jobs as we are saving our money? We want to build a home later on in life.

Ans: — The income from your jobs will far exceed any income from running a boarding house. There's plenty of grief in the boarding house business and especially so since the rationing became effective. If you two were not physically able to get out and hold down a good paying job, the other business would not give a living. Stick to your jobs and continue to save your money and you will be able to build after the war is over.

CS — Here I am again. I've not another new husband. He seems like he is for the right thing. Tell me, will he be a mistake to marry him? I have two children and don't want to make another mistake.

Ans: — Better to stay with this fellow than the present he's living with another woman and you must not become too closely involved with him until he is free to "take turkey" with you. Continue your search for a nice husband and be reasonably sure that the one you choose is single and not mixed up with another woman.

FG — My husband is located in Seattle, Wash. He's a service. He is insisting I come up there to visit. I go or wait and get a furlough?

Ans: — Give your husband the thrill of his life and pay him a visit. You aren't very far south from his camp and it would certainly boost his moral to see his "sugar pie" again.

Aid to Enemy

"Any American who wilfully neglects to pay his taxes on time or to invest every cent he can in War Bonds is surely giving aid and comfort to the enemy. We have a job to do and we are all called for service to our country. Our dollars are called in service too. Let us all get together. Shall we be more loyal with our dollars than with the lives of our sons?" — Secretary Morgenthau.

In Loyal Support of our fighting men, we have pledged ourselves to remind every American to buy more War Stamps & Bonds Now McNutt Say None But FEPC To Handle Capital Transit Case. WASHINGTON, (A N P) — There is no jurisdictional dispute within his official family over the handling of the Capital Transit company charges of discrimination, Paul V. McNutt, War Manpower chairman, told his press conference last week. Remy B. Deschner, area director for WMC, had sought to take the case out of the hands of the Fair Employment Practice committee by insisting that the committee's function was that of a "fact finding" agency with powers to recommend. Of course, the committee disagreed, and said no. "Deschner was wrong and I told him so," McNutt firmly declared. "Under the present order the jurisdiction is under FEPC," he added. The Manpower chief was asked whether or not he would be cooperating with the war department in the distribution of war prisoners.

"We would be consulted in that respect," he said. "Where it is possible we would use them to meet our needs. They are under the control of the war department. Discussing the possible effect the use of war prisoners in industry would have on local labor supply, McNutt said the number of prisoners would be inconsequential. Any conflict there might be, he said, would be up to the secretary of war to handle.
